PARIS.

Condition of the City—Prussian Inventions Denied—Provisions for Three Months—Discipline and Order Everywhere—The People United—The Prussians Ready to Bombard—Approaches to the City Mined.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Brussels correspondent of the NEW-YORK TIMES telegraphs that Mrs. WASHBURNE, who is in that city, receives letters frequently from her husband in Paris by balloon express.

MESSAGES FROM AMERICAN RESIDENTS.

The following was received this morning by balloon, from Paris, dated Sept. 29, and addressed on an open card to E. H. KIDDER, Maiden-lane, New-York City, by his son GEORGE:

"Tell the family I am in no danger. There are plenty of provisions here. The terrible stories manufactured by Count VON BISMARCK regarding internal dissensions here are utterly false. The troops are in excellent condition."

THE FRENCH TROOPS IMPROVING.

By the same balloon came an open card from WILLIAM DREYER to E. DREYER, Fayette-street, Baltimore, which says:

"Our days are occupied in perfecting our ambulance, of which we Americans are justly proud. There is no danger of famine for at least three months to come. The city is well-provisioned. The troops are improving wonderfully; the city is quiet and very orderly, and no noise or disturbances are heard anywhere."

CONFIRMATION.

Private letters to Oct. 3 by another balloon express, which were received this afternoon, confirm the above statements.

PRUSSIAN PREPARATIONS FOR ATTACK.

TOURS, Oct. 6.—News has been received here that the Prussians have now completed all arrangements for shelling and attacking Paris. The guns and mortars are in position.

SPIRIT OF THE PEOPLE.

The spirit of the population, however, is undaunted. Advices received show that the garrison are prepared at any moment to second such attack as the forces outside of the Prussian lines may make. The French are aware that some time must elapse ere an offensive movement can be made, and they use the delay in drilling and arming the Mobiles.

DEFEAT OF THE DEMAGOGUES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Pall Mall Gazette has a balloon dispatch dated Paris, Monday, which says the demagogues have been defeated in their attempt to disturb the Provisional Government; that the Mobiles behave well in front of the enemy, and that meat is scarce.

PREPARATIONS FOR DEFENSE.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—All the bridges on the railroads and highways to the west of Paris, have been mined, and are to be blown up as the Prussians advance.

GERMAN SUPPLY DEPOT.

Beauvais, forty-one miles north-west of Paris, has been made a great victualing centre by the Germans.

A REVIEW AT VERSAILLES.

King WILLIAM reviewed the Sixth Prussian Army Corps, at Versailles, on Wednesday. Head-quarters were subsequently established at that place.

Rochefort and the Barricades—Parisians Evading Military Duty—The Ambulance Dodge—Division of Food—Serving Out Supplies—Prices.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Late advices from Paris say that ROCHEFORT has issued a poster begging the citizens not to construct private barricades. He says there must be unity in the system of interior defenses. The Réveil announces that the ultras do not intend to proceed to revolutionary elections of the municipality to-morrow, because they hope the Government intends to yield

SHIRKING MILITARY DUTY.

The complaint of the newspapers against the number of men who avoid military duty, by hooking themselves in some capacity or other to the ambulance service, are becoming louder every day. Dr. EVANS, the leading spirit of the American Ambulances, has vanished, leaving the care of the ambulances to others. Mr. WASHBURNE informs me there are still about 250 Americans in Paris, of whom about forty are women. Some remain to look after their homes, and others from curiosity.

SERVING OUT RATIONS.

A system has been adopted by the authorities to make the stores hold out as long as possible. Every butcher receives each morning a certain amount of meat, calculated upon his average sales. Against this meat he issues bills in the evening to his customers who, upon presentation of the ticket the next morning will receive the amount for which they have inscribed themselves at the tariff of the week. When tickets have been issued by the butcher equivalent to the meat which he is to receive, he issues no more. Yesterday a decree was promulgated ordering all persons having flour on sale to give it up to the Government at the current price, to be distributed to the bakers like the meat to the butchers. The meat supply does not equal the demand. Many persons are unable to obtain tickets. The restaurants cannot get enough for their customers. Work is at a stand still.

PRICES OF FOOD.

The Mobiles and Nationals, who apply forma paupers, receive one franc and a half per diem. At present prices, it is is impossible for even a single man to obtain sufficient nutriment for this sum. It was supposed the peasants invited to take refuge, would bring more than enough food with them for themselves and their families, but they preferred to bring old beds and furniture instead of stores of flour and sheep. We have 22,000,000 pounds of horse flesh; still the misery among those who have no money to buy food with, unless the Government boldly faces the question, will be very great. everything except beef, mutton and bread is at fancy prices. Ham costs 7 francs, the kilo; cauliflower, 1½ francs per head; salt-butter, 9 francs the kilo; fat chicken, 10 francs; thin, 5 francs; rabbit, 11 francs; duck, 9 francs; fat goose, 20 francs. Rents too are a vexed question. In a few days those for October will be due. Few can pay and it is proposed to allow no landlord to levy either before the close of the siege or before December. A report in the Journal Officiel states that all the Mobiles have Chassepots, and that 280,000 muskets of different kinds, chiefly Tabatieres, have been distributed among the Guard Nationale, and 20,000 to the Franco-Tireurs. There are still 10,000 on hand.

The Battle of Sept. 30—Object of the French Reconnoissance and the Results—Trochu's Report.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—A messenger reached London today with dispatches from Paris from the 30th of September to the 3d of October. There was heavy firing on Thursday night, and it increased in intensity. This morning at about 10 o'clock I saw about 100 wounded brought to the Palais de l'Industrie, and on going down to Montrouge I found the church near the fortifications full of them.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

The following is the official account of the engagement: Our troops, in a vigorous sortie, successfully occupied Chevilly and L'Hay and advanced as far as Thiais and Choisy-le-Roi. All these positions were wholly occupied. After a sharp artillery and musketry engagement our troops fell back on their positions with remarkable order and coolness. The Garde Mobile were very firm. Our losses are considerable, and those of the enemy probably as large. TROCHU.

Rumors have been in circulation all day of a great victory and a junction of the Army of the Loire.

Gen. TROCHU's report is dated at Bicetre, 10½, and reduces the success to real dimensions.

A MORE DETAILED REPORT.

An additional report by Gen. TROCHU says the object was, by a combined action on both banks of the Seine, to discover precisely in what force the enemy was in the village of Choisy-le-Roi and Chevilly. While the brigade of Gen. GUILHEM drove the enemy out of Chevilly, the head of the column of Gen. BLAIZE entered the village of Thiais and seized a battery of cannons, which, however, could not be moved for want of horses. At this moment the Prussians were reinforced, and the retreat was effected in good order. Gen. GUILHEM was killed. Gen. D'EREX, while this combat was going on, marched with his brigade on Creteil, and inflicted severe losses with his mitrailleuses.

THE FRENCH LOSS.

The journal Le Temps calculates the loss on Friday at about 500 wounded and 400 killed.

OBJECT OF THE SORTIE.

The object of the sortie was to blow up a bridge over the Seine, and to rouse the courage of the Parisians by obtaining a success where the Prussians were not supposed to be in force. Neither end having been attained, consequently, the besieged are greatly depressed.

No Anarchy—Private Intelligence by Way of Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 6.—Letters have been received here from Paris and its neighborhood by several prominent French gentlemen, the contents of which are today confirmed by private telegrams, to the effect that the situation of affairs at that city has improved, and that there are no dissensions among the people, all of whom, regardless of political opinions, are united in defense of the capital. "The arming of the citizens continues," says one of the correspondents, "and the hopes of the Prussians that the people of Paris would be found in anarchy on the approach of the enemy are disappointed."

RECENT ENCOUNTERS.

A Battle Near Chateau-Gaillaird—The Prussians Obliged to Evacuate Pithiviers Precipitately—Cattle and Forage Captured by the French—The Affair at Chisses Probably the Same—A Sortie at Soissons—Cannonading at Maintenon.

TOURS, Oct. 6.—The battle which occurred near Chateau-Gaillaird on the 4th has been productive of important results. The Prussians were defeated and forced to retreat. The position taken by the French was one that necessitated the evacuation of Pithiviers by the enemy. The Prussians abandoned that point with so much precipitation, that many cattle, a large amount of forage, &c., were left behind, all of which fell into the hands of the French. [Pithiviers is a town which the Prussians had occupied for some time, situated on the highway from Fontainebleau and Malsherbes to Orleans. It is twenty-three miles north-east of Orleans, and contains a population of about 4,000.]

DEFEAT OF PRUSSIANS AT CHISSES.

ST. QUENTIN, Oct. 5, via TOURS, Oct. 6.—A report from Gen. RIGAU, forwarded from Tours, shows that a decided success was achieved yesterday by the French troops under his command.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

TOURS, Oct. 6, via LONDON.—Gen. RIGAU reports from Chevilly on Wednesday that he had reconnoitered toward Toury with three brigades of cavalry and infantry and a few guns. He reached Chisses at about 7 o'clock, surrounded the village, and took five Bavarian prisoners and some guns. RESSAYRE's Brigade turned the village on the right, and the enemy's cavalry, 500 strong, supported by 2,000 infantry, were obliged to retreat precipitately toward Paris. The French pursued them three hours beyond Toury. Gen. RIGAU ascertained the presence with these forces of Prince ALBERT of Saxe-Meinengen and of Prince ALBERT of Saxe-Altenbourg. A drove of cattle was captured by the French.

[Toury is on the Paris and Orleans Railroad, about twenty-two miles from Orleans, and is about twelve miles to the west of Pithiviers. Neither Chevilly nor Chisses is laid down on the map of this region, but from all the facts at hand it seems probable that this encounter is identical with that described above, at Chateau-Gaillaird, which compelled the evacuation of Pithiviers and the abandoning of the cattle.]

RE-OCCUPATION OF TOURY BY THE FRENCH.

ORLEANS, via LONDON, Oct. 6—10 A. M.—In consequence of the Prussian defeat at Toury, and re-occupation of that town by the French, the Prussians have evacuated Pithiviers hastily leaving their cattle behind.

ANOTHER FIGHT AT SOISSONS.

ST. QUENTIN, Oct. 5, via TOURS, Oct. 6.—There was a combat, yesterday, near Soissons, and prisoners say that two regiments of the army of the Duke of MECKLENBURG-SCHWERIN were defeated by the garrison.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The battalion of the Garde Mobile raised in the Department of Aisne, and commanded by Duke DE FITZ JAMES, is mentioned as having distinguished itself by its steadiness and gallantry before Soissons.

AN ATTACK ON MAINTENON.

CHARTRES, Oct. 5, via TOURS, Oct. 6.—Cannonading commenced this morning near Maintenon. [Maintenon, in the Department Eure-et-Loir, lies ten miles north, north-east of Chartres, at the junction of the rivers Eure and Voise, and on the railroad from Chartres to Versailles. It contains the ruins of the gigantic aequeduct begun by LOUIS XV. to supply Versailles with water from the Eure, and the magnificent chateau in which he was married to FRANCOISE D'AUBIGNE. Maintenon is about five or six miles to the westward of Epernon, which was captured by the Prussians on Wednesday.[

ANOTHER SORTIE FROM METZ.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The garrison of Metz have made a sortie against the Eighth Prussian Corps at Jouy. The losses were trifling on both sides. It is said the French troops at Metz are still deceived as to the result of the war.

THE TUILERIES LETTERS.

Cost of the Baptism of the Prince Imperial—Imperial Leeches of the Treasury—The Conspiracy Trial Plot—Police Made Testimony.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Advices to the 3d inst. from Paris show that the Tuileries correspondence reveals the fact that both CASSAGNAC and JEROME DAVID were regular pensioners on the civil list. The cost of the Prince Imperial's baptism amounted to 898,000 francs.

IMPERIAL PARASITES.

The cousins, male and female, of the Emperor received 1,310,975 francs per annum; the Duc DE PERSIGNY, in two months, 60,000 francs; the Prince SABLONOWISKI, the Countess GAJAN, Mme. CLAUDE VIGNON, le Gen. MORRIS, and many others, are down for various sums; 1,200 francs to Gen. DE FAILLY. The Duchess of MOUCHY, whose name continually appears, received 2,000,000 francs as a marriage portion. The son of the American BONAPARTE had a pension of 30,000 francs; Mme. RATAZZI, of 24,000 francs; her sister, Mme. TURR, the same; Marquis PEPOLI, 25,000 francs. The cousins, not contented with their pensions, were always getting extra allowances. Prince ACHILLE MURAT's debts the Emperor paid a dozen times.

THE POLICE ASSASSINATION PLOT.

The Prefect of Police is actively engaged in an attempt to throw light upon M. PIETRI's connection with the periodical plots against the Empire. Documents discovered show that the most of these plots were of the Imperial Police, and that PIETRI, LAGRANGE and THARNIER, Juge de Instruction, were the prime movers. It is certain that BARLOT received 20,000 francs for his services as a conspirator.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A "Nest" of Imperialists in Jersey—Excitement in Brussels—Bismarck Irritated at German Indifference About Alsace and Lorraine—The Bombardment of Strasbourg—Ten Thousand Persons Homeless—Injury to the Cathedral—A Flurry in Havre.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Brussels correspondent of the NEW-YORK TIMES, writing on the 5th inst., asks: "Have you had an account of the doings of the nest of Imperialists assembled on the Island of Jersey? They are spending money profusely, and are boasting what they can do through certain political connections in England. M. ROUHER has been there and M. DROUYN DE LHUYS, and a host of other notabilities. Marshal LEBŒUF went over to the island at night in a cockle shell of a boat. All this makes quite an excitement here."

INDIFFERENCE ABOUT ALSACE AND LORRAINE.

It is stated in a Berlin dispatch that the cold language of the German Press with regard to the annexation of Alsace and Lorraine, is exciting the displeasure of Count VON BISMARCK. If this be correct it is a hopeful sign of peace.

STRASBOURG.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Five hundred houses were destroyed in Strasbourg by the bombardment, and the number of persons rendered homeless reaches 10,000. Subscriptions for their relief are general throughout Germany. It is denied that the Cathedral escaped serious damage by the bombardment. Persons just arrived from the scene report that the edifice suffered severely.

THE PRUSSIAN ARMY IN SOUTHERN FRANCE.

Gen. TRESKOW commands the Prussian Army destined for service in the south of France.

A FRENCH IRON-CLAD IN THE BRITISH CHANNEL.

The French iron-clad steamer Regard Armand is cruising in the Channel near New-Haven.

THE HAMBURG STEAMERS AS PRISONS.

HAMBURG, Oct. 6.—The steamers of the Hamburg-American line are being used for the detention of French prisoners.

A FLURRY IN HAVRE.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—An American frigate that entered the harbor of Havre created a scare in saluting. The people supposed the enemy was bombarding the town.

A STEAM MITRAILLEUSE.

TOURS, Oct. 6.—It is asserted that an armorer of Lyons has constructed a steam mitrailleuse, the most formidable yet known. There is no news from Paris.

A POSTAL BALLOON.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Capt. SCHMITT, of the French Artillery, and inventor of the mitrailleur, has devised a new style of balloons for postal purposes.

Feeling of the Country on the War—Reports of Prefects.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The French Journal Officiel contains two pages of extracts from Prefects' replies to a letter addressed to them at the commencement of July by the Minister of the Interior, asking for a report upon the feeling of the country about the war. These extracts show that in the opinion of the Prefects the nation was prepared to support the policy of the Government, but not enthusiastic for war. On Sunday evening the news of the fall of Strasbourg and Toul was received by the Government, and this morning it was made public. In falling, says M. GAMBETTA, they cast a glance toward Paris to affirm once more the unity and durability of the Republic, and they leave us as a legacy the duty to deliver them, and the honor to revenge them. The boulevards were crowded, and every one astonished. Many refused to credit the news. The D'Electeur Libre proposes to meet the emergency by sending virile missionaries into the Provinces to organise a levy en masse and drive from our territory the impious horde which are overrunning it. All kinds of reports are believed credulously as ever.

The Situation at Lyons—Preparations for Defense—The "Reds"—Protection of Normandy.

TOURS, Oct. 6.—At Lyons, in view of the Prussian approach, due military precautions are being taken. The surrounding heights are fortified, and occupied by regular troops. The Reds seem determined to organise a movement. They have had a meeting at Grenoble, numbering over 2,000 persons, at which several speeches were made. It is expected that the Government will at once take measures to stop this manifestation.

NORMANDY.

The Government is taking measures to insure Normandy against devastation by sending there a line of the Mobile Guard.

PUBLIC OPINION IN GERMANY.

Growing Opposition to the Latest Prussian Policy—A General Desire for Peace.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A friend of mine, just back from Germany, where he has been extensively traveling for several weeks, furnishes me with the following facts, which it may be worth the while to record in your valuable paper:

Public opinion in Germany has undergone, of late, a change of an unexpected kind—a change in a twofold direction. On the one hand, that peaceable feeling, that almost cosmopolitan spirit of the whole nation, which has become proverbial, which abhorred the idea of conquest and of supremacy as against other nations, or of interference with their concerns, is, to a great extent, replaced by an ebullition of enmity and aggressiveness against the French, in the upper, and even in the middle classes, a great deal less among the working classes of the cities and manufacturing districts, where the International Working Men's Association has taken deep roots. There can be no doubt, that this change was brought about by the Press, which, with only a few exceptions, receives its inspiration from official sources. After the surrender of Sedan, when the French nation appeared to be helpless, and the crime of the declaration of war exploited by the discomfiture and capture of the great criminal, the tenor of that Press grew more defiant than before, and its denunciations were directed against the French nation, instead of the Government. The official and semi-official organs demanded a reduction of France in power to so modest dimensions, even, if need be, by a partition into several independent parcels, that she might forever be harmless; the spirit of the whole Latin race was said to be hostile to the best interests of mankind, and was to be paralyzed by Germany giving law and direction to the world's affairs—and much more of the same stuff.

Then came a reaction of public sentiment against this official kind of patriotism. The working men's associations, almost everywhere in Germany, and even in Austria, had, from the outset, protested against the war which they declared to be a war of two despots, and foreign to the interests of the nations, and, when it proved to be inevitable, had demanded that it should be kept within the bounds of a defensive struggle. They now began to denounce the continuation of the war as a crime against humanity. This led to the imprisonment of quite a number of the most intelligent working men in Brunswick, Munich and elsewhere, which, however, could not intimidate the rest of the working class. But now even among the other classes single voices loudly protested against a continuation of the war for the sake of conquest, against the spreading of national hatred of the French, and nationality in general. One of these voices was that of JOHANN JOEL JACOBY, of Königsberg, than whom there is no more highly respected advocate of liberal views in Germany; another that of JACOBUS VENEDY, like the former, a liberal of the old school, and of forty years' standing. JACOBY was put into prison by the military commander of Königsberg, a proceeding which was, on many sides, energetically deprecated.

There are already many of the best men of Germany who pronounced to our informant their dissent from the latest Prussian policy, although they did not think that the time had come to express it publicly. They considered the siege of Paris as an egregious blunder, and the continuation of the aggressive movements on the part of King WILLIAM as a proof that either BISMARCK had lost his influence on the King or else been guilty of a lack of statesmanship. It was, they said, foolish to exasperate the French to something like despair, to shed more blood, when magnanimity could have been more advantageous, and secured all the necessary conditions of peace, and even cemented forever the friendship between the two nations. It was dangerous for the consolidation and liberal aspirations of Germany to excite the hatred of all the other nations by her imitation of French chauvinism; it was, at any rate, not moral, not dignified, not justifiable before her own conscience.

Meanwhile, and up to the time when our informant left, the spirit of dissatisfaction with the actual drift of the war had been growing. The sacrifices of the people had been too great to be much longer silently borne, when there were no corresponding boons to be reaped. The prospect that the war might be protracted far into the Winter might entail a great deal of sickness and mortality in the army, while at home industry is nearly at a standstill, and the pursuits of peace baffled; and that such a state of things might induce foreign forcible or diplomatic intervention, especially on the part of Russia, or Austria, grew gloomier from day to day. It was evident that public opinion would, in spite of the well-known power of German patience and endurance, make itself soon everywhere heard and respected, or, if not respected, formidable.

CITY WAR NEWS.

The German War Fund Collections.

Mr. ALBERT KLEMROTH, the authorised agent of the Liederkranz Society, has paid over to the Treasurer of the general fund another installment of $1,000, collected among the members of the Society. Thus far, the Society has collected $4,000.

The German Patriotic Aid Society of Yorkville has published a subscription list, from which it appears that $1,227 50 have been subscribed by the Germans of that district, a large part of which was collected by a committee of ladies.

The congregation of Rev. Mr. FLEISCHHACKER's Church have collected $100 in aid of the general fund.

The Germans of Elizabeth, N. J., will hold a war meeting on Monday, and will be addressed by Gen. SIGEL and Dr. VON HOLST.

The French Subscription Committee.

The French Subscription Committee met last evening, at No. 21 West Houston-street, Mr. GERDY, presiding, and $600 in subscriptions were received. The tenth subscription list shows that, during the past week, $3,556 43 has been collected, including a donation of $1,000 from an anonymous Frenchman—$54,093 34 having been collected previously. The total amount has reached the sum of $57,579 77. Remittances to the amount $5,100 sterling and 9,783 francs have been made to Paris.

An excited discussion ensued in reference to the missing funds, which it is supposed were realized by the "Franco-Irish" picnic at Jones' Wood some time ago, but no definite action in reference to the matter was taken; and it appeared that the majority of the members of the French Committee repudiated the whole affair.

It is stated in a dispatch from California, that at a banquet at San Francisco a dozen French patriots raised 60,000 francs by subscription, which was immediately announced by cable to the French Government at Tours.

Return of the French Gun-Boat La Touche Treville.

The French gun-boat La Touche Treville, whose departure caused such excitement on Wednesday evening, in connection with the German steam-ship Westphalia, arrived in the Upper Bay yesterday evening. Her arrival causes no small amount of gratification to those who had been under apprehension for the safety of the German steamer—the report that the latter had been chased by the Frenchman having caused much anxiety.

SINGULAR SUICIDE.

A Wealthy Merchant Shoots Himself While in Bed—Extraordinary Precautions Taken by the Deceased.

A very remarkable case of suicide was reported, yesterday, the details being of a rather mysterious character. The Eighth Ward Police notified Coroner ROLLINS, yesterday afternoon, that MAX E. BEROLSHEIMER, a merchant, had been found dead in his bed at Maillard's Hotel, No. 631 Broadway, the cause of death being unknown. When Dr. JOHN BEACH arrived at the hotel and examined the body he found a revolver in the left hand of deceased and a pistol-shot wound in the heart, which had caused death. Mr. BEROLSHEIMER had undressed himself, and drawn up the bed-clothes close to his chin, when he fired the bullet that had ended his life. The report of the weapon had thus been deadened, and passed unheeded by those in the house at the time. The deceased had left his office, at No. 406 Broadway, at 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, and was last seen alive an hour and a half after. Among his personal effects was found a letter addressed to his friend, ADOLPH ZINN, in whose store he had office room, in which the deceased stated that he might die suddenly, either of asthma or colic, and that he had made a will, which was to be handed to Mr. BRANDIES, another friend, who lives in Brooklyn. In the letter he stated that he wished his body to be laid in Greenwood, and his debts all paid, especially one of $25 to his washerwoman and the bill of Mr. MAILLARD. No motive was assigned for the suicidal act, and it remains a mystery, especially as the accused was reported to be very wealthy.

Coroner ROLLINS held an inquest last evening, when it appeared that Mrs. D. BESENAU, the wife of the hotel manager, saw the deceased enter his room on Wednesday afternoon, and the fact that he remained in his apartment beyond his usual hour appears to have passed unnoticed until nearly twenty-four hours had elapsed. The waiter had called him to breakfast, but receiving no response retired, and concluded not to disturb him. At noon the chamber-maid tried the room door, and finding it still locked, made a rude summons, and not eliciting any response she became alarmed. Mrs. BRANDIES, the wife of the gentleman mentioned in the letter alluded to, called at the hotel about that time in order to see Mr. BEROLSHEIMER, and she also made an effort to elicit a response to her summons. The fact of his death was then ascertained by the aid of a policeman. The deceased was thirty-seven years of age and temperate in his habits, and leaves his numerous friends totally unprepared to account for his seeking death. He had been subject to spasms of colic for several months, and may have became frightened or weary by the frequency of the attacks. He had been an inmate of Maillard's Hotel for five years. A jury rendered a verdict of death by a pistol-shot wound in the heart, inflicted by himself, though they persisted in refusing to insert the word suicide in their verdict. The remains were taken in charge by his friends for burial.

THE NIGHTENGALE MURDER.

Conclusion of the Trial of James Spruell—He is Sentenced to Imprisonment for Five Years.

On the 5th of October, 1869, the people of Belvidere, N. J., were alarmed by a report of a conflict between a party of blacks with some white men, in which there was violence and murder. The quiet town had rarely in its history had experiences of this nature, and the excitement spread throughout the county. The circumstances of the case were of a character to enrage the blacks against the whites, one of whom was the perpetrator of the crime, and since the colored population was quite large, the fear that other deeds of blood might follow was not without justification. The men between whom the affray took place were engaged in a kind of work, upon the Delaware River, that was not calculated to restrain lawlessness, and their associates were of the worst class. The fight had taken place upon the Delaware River bridge, a party of negroes having been met by one SPRUELL, while he was engaged in conversation with a colored woman. One of the negroes, WM. NIGHTENGALE, who had some previous dispute with SPRUELL, returned after the party had passed, and commenced to use insulting language. A fight ensued, in which the other negroes joined. SPRUELL was chased by the negroes, until he turned upon NIGHTENGALE and stabbed him. This ended the fight, and the negroes fled.

During the night the injured man died, and SPRUELL subsequently gave himself up for trial One of the negroes, CHARLES ROBINSON, was also held as a witness.

The Coroner's inquest was held soon afterward, and a verdict, to the effect that NIGHTENGALE came to his death from a wound inflicted by JAMES SPRUELL, was returned. At the next meeting of the Court a large crowd of persons from the country flocked into Belvidere to witness the trial. It was, however, postponed on account of the illness of the Prosecuting Attorney, to the present Fall term. By the time the case came up for trial the public excitement had very nearly died out, and the investigation of the case attracted very little attention. ROBINSON was the only witness called whose testimony could strongly affect the case. What he narrated was very much in favor of the prisoner. NIGHTENGALE had wantonly insulted SPRUELL, after having avowed his intention of fighting with him. When SPRUELL returned the insulting epithets, NIGHTENGALE struck him, and followed up the attack until SPRUELL killed him. The case was given to the jury after argument, and they yesterday returned a verdict pronouncing SPRUELL guilty of murder in the third degree. The Court sentenced the prisoner to five years in the State Prison at hard labor.

Horrible Death—Drowned in a Cesspool.

Yesterday, about noon, ROBERT CURRIE, a plumber, while repairing the cesspool at No. 199 Washington-street, Hoboken, fell in and was suffocated. It is not known in what manner the accident happened, but it is supposed that in stooping over the sewer, for the purpose of examining it, he lost his balance. The sink is in a cellar, and CURRIE went down, about half past 11; about 2 o'clock he was discovered, resting head downwards and almost out of sight. The pool is only 30 inches wide, and as CURRIE is a heavy man, once having fallen it must have been utterly impossible for him to save himself. He leaves a wife and four children, residing at No. 178 Garden-street.

Death of a Veteran.

The Virginia State Journal of the 5th inst. says: "Mr. THOMAS FOSTER, one of the oldest Methodists in America, having heard the preaching of Rev. Dr. ADAM CLARK; a brave soldier of the war of 1813; a Past Grand in the I. O. O. F., at Winchester, Va., and a member of the oldest families of Washington City, calmly resigned his soul into the hands of his Maker on Sunday evening, just as the church bells were ringing for public worship. The venerable man was sitting in the midst of his family, conversing affectionately and cheerfully, when he suddenly fell from his chair, and his happy spirit had taken its flight. He was a member of McKendree Chapel."

End of a Strike—New Superintendent of the Union Pacific Railroad—Fatal Boiler Explosion.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The owners of some eighty odd lake vessels, who struck a few days since against the prices paid by the lumber-dealers for carrying lumber, have succumbed to the lumbermen and put their entire fleet at work at the rates offered by them.....E. SICKLES, of Omaha, has been appointed Superintendent of the Union Pacific Railroad, in place of Col. C. G. EMMONDS. The latter gentleman will resume his residence in this city.....On Monday evening last a boiler in a soap factory at Bradwood, Ill., exploded, instantly killing L. TENSLER, J. HIGHMAN, WM. HEARTSLER and FIDET ROSE.

THE CONNECTICUT MURDER.

Trial of Wilson for Killing Warden Willard—He Attempts His Own Defense, but Gives it up in Disgust—Found Guilty, and Sentenced to Death—He Prefers Hanging to Commitment to State Prison.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 6.—At the opening of the Superior Court today, the counsel of JAS. WILSON, on trial for the murder of Warden WILLARD, of the Connecticut State Prison, retired from the case, as the prisoner desired to conduct his own defense. The counsel simply advised the prisoner on legal points. The evidence for the prosecution then commenced. Dr. JACKSON testified to the character of WILLARD's wounds, and Deputy Warden MARTIN testified to the facts of the killing, and also that prior to the killing, WILSON had been confined for forty-eight hours in the dark cell, for attempting to escape. The witness was sharply cross-examined by WILSON as to the length of time he (WILSON) was confined in the dark cell, but could only testify as to the time recorded in the punishment book. The prisoner then asked if he, (WILSON,) had not shown the witness offensive meat which had been furnished for rations. The prosecution objected to testimony of that character, and the Court ruled it out at this stage of the trial, as it did not tend to show that the killing was in self-defense, though it might be admitted at a later stage, on some other points. WILSON said if this testimony was refused, he had no further defense, and should leave the prosecution to go on as they saw fit. The Court asked the prisoner if he would allow his counsel to go on. He replied that they would have nothing further to do; that it would save expenses to the State to let the prosecution proceed alone. To a question of the Court, the counsel replied that they had nothing to say. WILSON then turned his back to the Court, and during the examination of the next witness, who was the chaplain of the prison, sat moody and obstinate until the Court adjourned for recess.

At the opening of the Court in the afternoon, WILSON, who occupied a place at the counsel table during the morning hearing, was seated in the prisoner's box. The prosecution introduced additional evidence to prove the facts of the murder of Mr. WILLARD. The prisoner following out the intention declared in the morning of making no further defense, offered no witnesses. The prosecution submitted the case without argument. WILSON was asked by the Court if he had anything to say to the jury, and he replied, "I have been practically shut off from all defense, and have nothing more to say." Judge CARPENTER charged the jury concerning the law, and they retired at 2½, to decide upon their verdict.

The jury were out only twelve minutes, and their verdict was "Guilty of murder in the first degree." Judge CARPENTER asked WILSON if he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced. WILSON replied, "I have only to say that I do not feel that I have been tried. I am perfectly satisfied with the result. To be hanged will be an act of supreme mercy compared to being compelled to live in the Connecticut State Prison as I have been." The prisoner was then sentenced to be hanged on Friday, Oct. 13, 1871. He is to be remanded to the State Prison until the 9th of October, 1871, when he will be brought to the jail in this city and kept until his execution.

COMMERCIAL CONVENTION.

Second Day's Proceedings—Reports and Resolutions—Obstructing River Navigation.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 6.—The Southern Commercial Convention reassembled at 9 o'clock, the President in the chair. The reports of the Committees were heard. The Committee on Direct Trade between Europe and the Southern Atlantic Cities reported, favoring the granting of aid to American shipping. The report was adopted. The Committee on the Southern Pacific Railroad made a report recommending aid by Congress to the road near the thirty-second parallel, with branches terminating at Memphis, Vicksburg and New-Orleans. Adopted. The report of the Committee on River Navigation, Canal, &c., was a very lengthy one. One of the resolutions declares rivers channels of travel and communication belonging to the people of the country, and not to be obstructed by individuals or corporations.

CHARLES REEMBLIN, of Ohio, objected to this resolution. He said two classes of people have rights on rivers, those navigating up and down, and those crossing. This resolution totally ignored the rights of transit, and was a revival of the old public opinion raised by the ordinance of 1787, but which has been destroyed by the Courts. Mr. STENNARD, of Missouri, had no design to obstruct railroads, but it was the desire of the Committee to prevent railroads from unnecessarily obstructing river navigation. A motion was made to amend by inserting the word "unnecessarily" before "delay." The amendment was lost. The resolution and report were then adopted by the following vote: Yeas—Alabama, 8; Arkansas, 4; Florida, 3; Georgia, 13; Iowa, 1; Indiana, not counted; Kansas, 3; Louisiana, 8; Mississippi, 8; Missouri, 10; Massachusetts, 1; Ohio, 21; Tennessee, 8; South Carolina, 6; Pennsylvania, 4; Texas, 1; Virginia, 10; Nevada, 1. Total, 108. Nays—Kentucky, 11; Maryland, 7; Michigan, 8; New-York, 6; North Carolina, 3; Tennessee, 1. Total, 35.

The report of Connecticut, recommending free trade in money and the repeal of the Usury laws and the habits by which money contracts are made exceptional, and the amendment to the Bankrupt laws, so as to take the monopoly from banks in supplying currency, was adopted, and subsequently recommitted.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Convention reassembled at 3 P. M. The resolution in favor of the early completion of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad was adopted. The report of the Committee on Free Trade in Money, which was pending at the noon recess, was taken up, and the first resolution, recommending the repeal of the Usury laws, and of all the statutes by contracts in money, and treated exceptionally, was adopted. The second was lost. R. M. BISHOP, of Ohio, offered a report of the Committee in regard to public lands, which was adopted without discussion. The report declared it should be a settled policy with the United States to regard public lands, not as capital or a source of revenue, but as a means of increasing the population and wealth of the country. The report recommended the appointment of a committee of three to memorialize Congress on this subject. The Committee on Free Wharfage made a report recommending Congress to legislate with a view to the reduction of rates, that are now excessive. Col. GASKILL, of Georgia, considered the report as asking of Congress to invade the rights of the States, and he hoped all of these were not lost by the late war. Congress had no more right to fix the rates of wharfage in Ohio than to fix the price on beef or pork. The report was adopted. E. A. JONES, of Tennessee, made a report of railroad facilities, from the Ohio River to the central portion of the South, with a resolution in favor of recommending to the Legislatures of the different States, and also of the counties and municipal authorities through which they may pass by the following lines of railway, and ask liberal legislation therefor: first, the Cincinnati Southern Railroad; second, the Louisville and Chattanooga, Grand Trunk Railway; third, the Cumberland and Ohio Railway. The report was adopted. The same gentleman offered an additional report, recommending Congress to grant a charter to the Cumberland and Ohio Railway. This provoked considerable opposition.

The report was not adopted. After other buness the Convention took a recess until 8 o'clock P. M.

REPUBLICAN FRANCE

The Defense of Paris—Elements of the Prussian Army—Education of Officers—Siege Operations—Trial of Cowards and Deserters—Skirmishing Before the Metropolis—The Fortifications.

From a Military Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 24, 1870.

Floundering in the mud. This is the condition of France. This is the result of trying to turn nearly forty millions of people into an aggressive, dictatorial, monarchical machine. If you could come to Europe and feel of its atmosphere today, you would be impressed with the idea that France is in a transition period, and, as yet, is nothing. It once changed from the tadpole to the frog, but what the frog is turning to, is more than mortal man can tell. France is not Roman Catholic, Protestant nor atheist; she is not republican, imperial, nor is she for constitutional monarchy; she is not Orleanist, Bourbon or Bonapartist. Politically, she is—what she is. She is not gay nor sad, happy nor unhappy. She does not work nor play; her population, civil or military, sit up all night, sleep three-fourths of the day, and breakfast after half the world has taken dinner. The results are, as the world now sees them—France floundering in the mud; no Generals, no statesmen, nothing to lean on, not even fully trusting in Paris, or giving this bulwark its proper support. Paris! Were I a Frenchman, I would undertake the defense of Paris simply to force the Germans to blot it out of existence. Not very civilized, am I? And yet communications from the city to the interior. I cannot believe that TROCHU has shown himself a great General in his preliminary steps for the defence of the capital. Four hundred thousand men inside the fortifications, help eat up Paris and uncover central and southern France. Had TROCHU sent 200,000 of them to the southward, to march here and there, to be formed into hardy troops, to animate the country, to show it that it had a large army as a nucleus for a still larger, the game would have been in better condition on the board. This movable, threatening corps would have made the surrounding of the city impossible to the Germans, even with half a million of men. It would have given France courage, and might have given Germany such rough work in the future as would have forced her back to her own frontier. At present, TROCHU is more or less in the position of BAZAINE at Metz. The force is too large. Two hundred thousand surplus soldiers are rendered a burden upon the defense of the city, instead of being made a splendid force to cut the German lines of communication and impede his siege operations in numerous methods, direct and indirect.

NO CAVALRY RAIDS.

A singular thing in this war is, that neither side has yet made a cavalry raid. The French cavalry has had ample opportunity to distinguish itself. France, and Paris especially, might have gained much time if a few brigades of well-mounted and dashing fellows had cut the German communications, torn up the railway tracks, and blown up the bridges in their rear. But, pardon me—I forgot that the French officers do not get up until 10 or 11 o'clock in the morning. It is too late then. Perhaps the Uhlans have prevented raids. Well, no doubt. They are light, nimble fellows. They do not kill a horse by their weight, as most cavalrymen do. Man and accoutrements weigh, together, about 160 pounds on an average. A wallet holds a pistol; a little leather bag holds an extra pair of boots, brushes, &c., for keeping things clean. A saddle-cloth protects the horse's back from the light saddle. One pair of canvas trousers, one loose canvas jacket, two pairs of stockings, are packed into a bag-like valise. A cloak is placed at the back of the saddle, two corn sacks of six pounds each on each side the cloak, a mess-tin in a leather case, and a four and a half pound lance completes the outfit.

TRIAL OF COWARDS AND DESERTERS.

A stern measure has been taken in Paris which must be productive of much good in the defense of the city. A committee has been formed "for the trial of cowards and deserters." This is a good idea. It means work. It savors of Saragossa in its second great siege. The man who would not die fighting then, died by hanging. Strong measures, certainly, but productive of great results. No doubt the cowards cursed the commanders who forced them to fight; but the commanders gave to Spain one of the great foundation stones of her glory and landmarks of her nationality.

SKIRMISHING BEFORE PARIS.

A little fight took place on the southern side of the city, on the 18th inst., between the besiegers and a French corps under Gen. VINOY. He undertook to impede the march of the Fifth Corps and the Second Bavarian. These he struck in flank, but finding them too well posted and too well supported, was obliged to return to the protection of the forts. This fight has been greatly magnified on both sides. It really amounts to but little, except to show that the French are not yet steady in attack, and lack discipline. Inside the city active operations are pursued to form an interior line of works by barricades. Gun-boats are placed on the Seine, and five floating batteries are supposed to be able to do good service if needed. I doubt their value. It may be said that Paris is well provisioned, and it should certainly hold out three months without any very heroic exertion. In the meantime, France, if she has any stamina left worth the memory of her old glory, should be able to organize in such a manner as will turn the tables completely.

THE FORTIFICATIONS.

The fortifications of Paris, including the earthworks, are not so weak as may be deemed by those who, in England, glory in the downfall of an old and feared foe. Marshal MARMONT, who defended the city in 1814, lent his influence to their construction. He said:

"Whatever may be the consequences of the most disastrous campaign, the scattered remnants of the army will always amount to 80,000 or 100,000 men, and, supported by regularly constructed forts, these 80,000 men would be unassailable. With the reserves which Paris contains, such an army, in a short time, population, riches of all kinds, material of all description, and with the aid of neighboring departments, the different services of the army would soon be filled up, and the losses repaired, and in less than a month an army of 300,000 men, well equipped, and with renovated courage, would be able to march against the enemy. What force would be not the enemy require to resist? If he divide, he will be weak everywhere and easily destroyed; if he remain together in order to resist and fight, how will he live? And what would be his fate after the slightest check? If, then, the enemy has advanced as far as Paris, the best thing he can do is to take himself off before the reorganized French Army can go out to meet him; and he should hasten to carry the war into the provinces, and within reach of his resources. Thus the war will be carried back to the frontiers, and all returning into its natural course, there is no longer any cause for apprehending a catastrophe."

THE INVADING HOST.

A War of Surprises—The Past Revealed —Misdeeds Under the French Empire —Blunders of the War—A Reconnoissance—Wholesale Neglect on the Part of the French.

From a Special Correspondent.

NANCY, Wednesday, Sept. 14, 1870.

This war has justly been designated "a war of surprises." The first surprise must have been that the Emperor NAPOLEON and his lieutenants were led into the fatal error of relying implicitly on the assumed superiority of their own resources, and that in consequence thereof they deemed their position invincible. Another surprise is that the wonted sagacity of the Emperor failed to measure adequately the strength of his adversary, and that only when it was too late, he was able to discover how cruelly he had been deceived. The confidence which France apparently possessed in the security of her own position, seems to have been unbounded, and the extent of it can only have been equaled by the ignorance which necessarily prevailed in regard to the true state of affairs in Germany. The superior generalship displayed by the Prussians contrasted surprisingly with the blunders committed by the French. The strategy exhibited by the Crown Prince and Prince FREDERICK CHARLES, under the leadership of Count MOLTKE, has contrived that German troops have made their appearance invariably at points where the French least expected to find them. Whether advancing or retreating, the French found ever, to their wonder, that they had been forestalled in their designs, or that their movements had been anticipated. Ample evidence is found on almost every battle-field that whole regiments of the French were taken by surprise. A large number of places, of more or less importance, were taken possession of unexpectedly. In fine, the continued successes of the Prussian Army are mainly due to a series of surprises. Again, the Prussians were surprised—not, however, in a like sense—but when they found that the work before them turned out, in many instances, an easy task, owing to a lack of discipline in the French ranks, or to acts of culpable negligence on the part of the enemy. The Germans were by no means cognizant, to the full extent, of their power. At all events, at the outset, they did not realize the idea of possessing the capability to reach the summit of those stupendous heights which their armies have attained. On the other hand, the French were ignorant of the proximity of danger calculated to lead them to the brink of a bottomless pit. Both sides have, therefore, been surprised in their turn, each in a fashion rather different to what was expected. And nations stand aghast at the spectacle of a people suddenly arrested in the desire to head the march of civilization, and in that arrest held up to humiliation by another nation, which, although possessed of all the elements necessary to promote progress, had hitherto been doomed to retain the position of a spectator rather than to assume that of an actor on the great political stage of the world. The apparent disparity in these conditions explains itself by the fact that Germany has never been a unit; and this leads us to another subject of wonderment, namely, to the fact that inverse results have been realized on both sides. Germany will be hereafter a unit, and will thus be enabled to march onward in rapid strides, while France, crushed, humiliated and impoverished, will require several decades until even hopes of recovery can be entertained.

THE PAST OF THE EMPIRE.

The hidden motives which brought on this war the historian will reveal hereafter. At present we can indulge only in conjectures and surmises. One thing, however, has manifested itself already, i. e., the fact that for many years the Emperor had surrounded himself with a set of men ill-suited to serve the interests of the nation. The satellites of NAPOLEON III. have either been guilty of the charge of having practiced gross deception, or they must have been blessed with unheard-of ignorance, and, consequently, rendered totally incapable to discern what was going on under their very noses. From beginning to end, all those persons in whom the Emperor had put his trust, and whom he considered as faithful servants, must have proven a lot of the direst imbeciles that can be imagined; else they stand convicted as arrant knaves. There is no choice. One or the other version must be correct; which side to accept, it seems difficult to decide upon at present. It would, as a matter of course, compel me to write under correction were I to state the figures by which the national debt of the Empire has been augmented during the last decade. Whatever the figure may actually be, the reader is fully aware that hundreds of millions francs have annually been added, and that the consequent increase in the burden of taxation is mainly due to the fabulous sums of money constantly required by the Army and Navy Departments. The tax-payer has always been led to believe that these enormous expenses were necessitated by the extreme efforts the Government made to provide for proper and efficient means for purposes of national defense. It was urged that neighboring States kept up a large standing army, and that although they deplored it, France was compelled to follow suit. Furthermore, had not France made a formal proposition relative to a mutual disarmament? And had not this proposition been met with a cold refusal? Was it not, under the circumstances, essentially, nay, an imperative duty to maintain a state of armed peace? Prussia especially had declined to accede to the wishes of the Emperor in this respect. And thus it became an easy task to explain the impossibility of entering upon a path of economy, or of urging upon the Army and Navy Departments the necessity of retrenchment. Quite the reverse; it appeared plausible that France had to provide for every possible emergency. The country must be in a position to overawe the enemy, and stand armed to the teeth. The infantry must be provided with Chassepot rifles; the artillery with breech-loaders; the navy must have iron-clads and turret ships. All these things required money. The demand was urgent; immediate compliance indispensable. Although the Democratic Party strenuously opposed the measure, the people willingly acquiesced. France, they believed, must not remain behind other nations. With the needle-gun in the hands of the Prussians, it seemed natural that they—i. e. the French—must have a superior weapon, cost what it might. So far, then, all looks fair, but the question arises now, whether or not the money so willingly, so ungrudgingly granted by the people, has really been expended for purposes of placing the army and navy on a proper war footing—who can tell? If this momentous question could be answered in the affirmative, if the money had really been applied for the alleged purposes, it is utterly impossible that France could have met with disasters of the magnitude of those which have just befallen the army. Where, then, has the money gone to? Can it be possible that the rumors whispered about Paris clubs some two years ago were true? People did not venture at that time to speak very audibly about these matters, but dark hints were thrown out relative to immense frauds, frauds involving millions, which had been committed, it was alleged, in the War Department, the discovery of which seriously reflected on several Generals and high functionaries. It was even added that they and a certain Field-Marshal had fallen into disgrace. Needless to say, the matter was hushed up. The Russian War in 1853, and the Italian War in 1857, had absorbed immense sums; but the expenditure of the Mexican War had outrun all expectations—it exceeded, probably, the combined cost of the foregoing campaigns. Moreover, the Mexican War had been rendered unpopular from the very beginning, and finally it turned out a total failure—a retreat. These facts, unpalatable as they were to the French nation, had to be smoothed down. To avow that the campaign had been disastrous was bad enough, and in addition to it they could ill afford to make a confession relative to the awful expenditure connected with the disasters. It was feared that a revelation of the truth would expose the Empire to dangers which those who were at the helm had every interest to avert. The real facts were concealed even from the Emperor. At all events it is very well known that for a long time he was kept in utter ignorance of what had occurred. Those connected with the affair, and most interested in a concealment, made strenuous efforts to postpone the evil day, and in doing so they involved themselves inextricably in fresh and more serious difficulties. The result was that an artificial state of things had to be maintained, and it is certain that this tended to loosen not only all bonds of discipline, but, likewise, to open the door to bribery and corruption. The party known under the name of "Chauvinists," originated with the Italian War—"Bataille gagnée; achetez," (Victory is ours; purchase.) These and telegrams of a similar nature, were sent by superior officers from the battle-field, addressed to bankers and stock-brokers at Paris. The Mexican War had the tendency of swelling very considerably the rank and file of the worthies alluded to. The French people had been told that in time of peace they must prepare for war, and it helped to explain away the necessity to tax them for military purposes. When, therefore, war was declared, the people had a right to expect that France was well prepared for all and every contingency. But, alas! the bubble has burst! The strength of the army looked very imposing on paper, but the sad reality revealed itself only when the Emperor assumed the command of the army at Metz. It was then made clear, what probably had been known long ago by the Prussian King, that the French Army was in a deplorable state of inefficiency; it became manifest that all the vaunted superiority was illusory. Once arrived at Metz, the Emperor must have discovered that he had to encounter fearful odds if ever he attempted to invade German territory. After the inglorious days of Saarbrück and Wissembourg, he meekly submitted to a retreat, and without making the slightest attempt to check the onward march of the Germans, he shut up the flower of his armies in Metz. He has thus deprived himself of one hundred to one hundred and twenty thousand fighting men, mostly veterans; and to believe the Germans, there is not a ghost of a chance of escape for them.

BLUNDERS OF THE WAR.

Either sheer recklessness or an utter want of forethought have dictated the retreat on Metz. But one of the greatest, and as it occurs to me, one of the most unpardonable blunders connected with the move, rests with the incomplete state of the railroad between Metz and Verdun. In a strategical point of view that road is, or rather has been, of the first importance. On reference to the map, it will be seen that the road is designated as one in course of construction. I have no means at present to ascertain at what period the works were commenced, nor do I know whether tangible reasons can be brought out to explain the cause of delaying the completion of the road. For very cogent reasons, I am equally ignorant how far advanced the works are at or in the immediate vicinity of [illegible] with a view of obtaining on the subject as much information as possible, I took the trouble one morning to ride through the woods of Saulnes, going within gunshot of Fort Tigremont. Being entirely alone, I was unaware of the task to which my inquisitiveness had exposed me. When on my way back to camp, I turned the horse's head toward the heights of St. Hubert. I discovered that I had gone more than half a mile beyond the Prussian outposts, and, moreover, I learnt that the very morning a reconnoitering party, consisting of a squad of dragoons, had been treated to shot and shell, killing and wounding five men and seven horses. Furthermore, my ride had been so far unsuccessful, as I had failed to find the brook. Yet, on emerging again from the wood, I discovered that south of the village of Armanvilliers, about two miles were graded, thus leaving only four or five miles toward Metz apparently untouched. So far as I could judge, there appeared no engineering difficulties of any consequence, and, therefore, a couple of thousand men would, in a few days, most undoubtedly have been able to put the road into a state of efficiency. I became so much interested that I resolved at once to prosecute my investigations into a matter which, in my humble opinion, involved the commission of an act of most culpable negligence. I was consequently in the saddle again at an early hour the following morning. Leaving the camp near Verneville, where I had found shelter for the night, and had an exceedingly kind reception from the officers of a regiment of Uhlans, I rode across the fields to Batilly and Giraumont, en route to Conflans. To my utter astonishment, I found nearly the whole distance, say about fourteen or fifteen miles, in a state of forwardness which admitted the presumption that, with very little exertion, the road could, within forty-eight hours, have been rendered fit for traffic. Starting from Conflans, the railroad track runs almost parallel with the high road to Etain. I had, therefore, an excellent opportunity of seeing every foot of ground, and I found—I might almost say, I was mortified to find,—that the road was ready to receive rails over the whole length. Arriving at Etain, a small city with about three thousand inhabitants, there presented itself a building destined to form a depot, roofed in and awaiting the opening of traffic. All along the road I kept asking myself what reasons could possibly prevail for neglecting these important works. What I had seen furnished to my mind additional proof that the French Generals, or rather the War Department at Paris, never possessed any well-digested plan of action. They held merely a wild notion of invading Germany, and the heat of excitement did not admit of the thought that tables might turn against them. Not one of the Emperor's advisers seemed solicitous for the future. On or about the 12th July it was well known by all the Generals in command that war had become inevitable. The Prussians did not appear before Metz until the 14th of August; the commanding Generals at Verdun and Metz had, therefore, thirty clear days for the work. The large garrisons at both forts could surely have spared a few thousand men, and a single week would have sufficed to make the road fit for transporting troops. Probably it could not have been constructed very substantially in that short space of time, but as rails could have been had at a convenient distance, and in sufficient quantities, it would have been an easy matter to make the road serviceable. I can think of nothing that could offer an excuse for or serve to palliate the grossness of the neglect. If I am not mistaken the existence of the road would have given quite another turn to the operations at Metz. It would have compelled the German Armies to follow a different line of strategy, and under those aspects the battle of Sedan would never have been fought. On the western side of Etain the road seemed equally advanced, though I had no means of judging for myself. I had been cautioned not to go much beyond the City of Etain, and apparently not without good reason. Verdun was then, and indeed remains at this moment, in possession of the French, and the outposts had been advanced so far as to be only a few miles from Etain. When I happened to call on the commander of the place, a Prussian Colonel, I learned that a provision column belonging to the Twelfth (Saxon) Army Corps had been attacked on the preceding day, the French outposts, it appears, had succeeded in capturing some thirty wagons, laden with stores; also in killing nineteen men of the escort. This piece of intelligence was the less cheering to me, inasmuch as I found it utterly impossible to obtain shelter in the city for either man of beast. Nay, notwithstanding a good deal of exertion, I was unable to get even a bundle of straw for myself and Rosinante. No alternative was left; I had to go obtside the city, where I met a cavalry picket. Trusting my horse to the care of a good-natured soldier, I soon fell asleep on the top of a few bags of oats. In the morning a cake of chocolate divided among the men, furnished me hot water, and thus provided the means of a good wholesome beverage for breakfast; a slice of bacon, with black bread from my saddle-bags, completing the early meal. In the city nothing could be had either for love or money. I had two days' hard work of it, it is true; but patience and resignation will lighten every difficulty—"Quod male fers, assuesce: feres bene." I had the satisfaction of seeing with my own eyes what otherwise I might have been slow to believe. I felt convinced that a great crime had been committed in neglecting the completion of this work, and was anxious to learn and judge for myself whether or not a cause for extenuation could be found.

LUPUS.

ENGLAND.

Sentiment in Relation to the War—Horrors of the Strife—British Commentaries—A Surgeon's Work.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 20, 1870.

The feeling about the war is perceptably and decidedly changing in England. The shocking atrocities committed by the Germans about Sedan have gone to the English heart. The statements of the Duc DE FITZJAMES have been more than confirmed by the correspondents of leading English journals, English officers and members of Parliament. The conduct of the Chinese at Tien-tsin was not more horrible. Innocent peasants were butchered, villages set on fire, women and children trying to escape driven back into the flames at the point of the bayonet, young girls violated and then murdered. The eye-witnesses to all this have been Prussian sympathizers, and their testimony cannot be disputed.

HORRORS OF THE STRIFE.

But the deliberate and needless cruelty to prisoners is even less excusable than the deeds done in that carnival of hell, a battle. There is no longer any doubt that thousands of the French prisoners at Sedan were miserably murdered by cold and wet and hunger. ALFRED SEYMOUR, M. P., and Col. DUDLEY CARLETON, of the Guards, with the Anglo-American ambulance, visited a prison camp on an island in the Meuse, and found the French soldiers starving on half a biscuit a day, and fiercely gnawing the raw flesh they cut from the dead horses floating down the river, while the ambulances were full, not of wounded, but of the famished and dying. On visiting the island prison camp they found crowds of soldiers begging for bread; the river dammed with the carcasses of putrifying horses; the island a mass of mud, in which the troops had lain through five days continual rain, without shelter and almost without food. All this is the testimony of the member of Parliament for Salisbury, and a Colonel of the Guards. The newspaper from which I copy these details says:

"From the same district, and from others, there are many dreadful stories of the treatment of prisoners and of the peasantry. These are narrated chiefly by English correspondents; men whose position and whose sympathies often intensely German—put their testimony beyond suspicion. They tell us of villages wantonly burned, with their inhabitants; of women violated; of peasants—male and female—shot, and mocked in their dying agonies; of houses gutted of their contents; of hundreds of innocent people literally homeless and starving. But this horrible treatment of prisoners of war is altogether unprecented. We cannot doubt the truth of the statement; the witnesses are too credible, and [illegible] only what they saw, and even this with the utmost reserve. The chiefs of the army must be held responsible for this general cruelty. They know that seventy or eighty wagons, laden with provisions, are daily [illegible] their men; also the provisions of food and medicine required for such a number, and they were bound to provide such necessaries. It is natural, and politic, perhaps, to treat a captive Emperor as the guest of the captor; but the honor of the King of Prussia and his commanders is equally bound up with the treatment of their soldier prisoners."

On this subject the Pall Mall Gazette, with its pronounced German proclivities, yet allows its correspondent, "AZAMUT BATUK," whose entire honesty it indorses, to publish the following:

"There is no more need to mention what the troops so full of 'regard for humanity' did at Bazeilles. All have seen the burned corpses of men, women and children lying close to those of pigs, sheep, cattle and horses; and some of them have seen, a couple of days later, German soldiers taking their meals or sleeping close by the still smoking bodies as quietly as if it were round a bivouac fire. And this deliberate and cool-headed extermination of several hundreds of dwellings and families was the result of a rumor that some one had shot from a window at one of the houses upon the German soldiers. A house having been pointed out, where this shot came from, its proprietors, a woman of fifty and a man of sixty, were tied together dragged through the whole borough, and shot at one of its ends. The same fate was reserved a priest, and the same 'regard for humanity' paid to him consequent on the unproved rumor that some one had fired on the troops from the church. All the stock of the country, down to the last calf, has been taken away by those who are reported to pay such wonderful consideration to individual rights. The same must be said with regard to the products of the harvest. There is no more a single grain either of corn or anything else to be found anywhere where the warriors have passed. Still more so is it with regard to wine and beer. Provincial people in France generally, and in the rich province of the Ardennes especially, have each of them a more or less large cellar. All of these have been broken into, and the contents absorbed, carried away, or poured out into the streets. I challenge any one to find a single house on the whole of the road from Sedan to Carignan, which has not been ravaged and plundered from the cellar to the roof. Time-pieces, women's dresses and linen, curtains, even pieces of furniture, are taken away as if they were military necessaries, and, when concealed by the inhabitants, exacted at the muzzle of a pistol or the point of a lance. And this is not done by individual soldiers, but by large parties commanded by officers, who appear to be particularly fond of silver plate, jewelry and laces. However large the amount of provisions collected from the country is, the Prussians do not seem to be inclined to feed their prisoners. All along the road from Sedan are daily carried large parties of French prisoners, so hungry and so sick that many fall on the road and are handed to a French or an English ambulance. All the English medical men to whom I spoke here had not a single word to say in favor of the Prussians. A young surgeon testified in my presence that on several occasions Prussians had boasted before him of having violated French women, and that officers of considerable rank came to his ambulance making a noise, attempting to take away horses, and eating, under the pretext of inquiring into their quality, provisions sent out from England for the wounded. Dr. FRANK and Dr. BLEWITT told me that they had at Balan several cases of French wounded who had butt-end bruises all over their bodies and faces, having been ill-used by the Prussians for not being able to march when they were ordered to do so, notwithstanding their suffering from shell and bullet wounds. One of these poor men can still be seen at the ambulance of the Café de l'Harmonie with a severe shell-wound in his leg, and with his face blue and black from the kind treatment of the Berlin and Munich civilizers. Dr. SIMS and Dr. MACCORMAC will testify that they had to work for more than three hours at the Caserne d'Asfeld, at Sedan, under a rain of shells and bullets, the Prussians firing at the ambulance notwithstanding the red cross flying in several places over the caserne, situated on a hill of the citadel commanding the whole country round Sedan. * * * If Germany remains victorious there will be for several years to come no possibility of peacefully living in any spot where a dozen Germans are to be found; and, as they are to be found everywhere, there will be little prospect of comfortable existence at all. If, on the contrary, they have a somewhat sensible defeat under the walls of Paris, the whole country in their rear will rise; every woman, every child, in France will take a knife, and very few Germans will see their fatherland again. Of this the peasants begin to speak already quite openly to any one whom they can believe not to be a Prussian."

A letter from a French officer to his sister gives the experience of a prisoner, and its truth is confirmed by the above and numerous and impartial statements. He says:

"Let God be praised, for it is only to His mercy that I owe my having not only escaped the Prussian bullets, but the Prussian treatment of their prisoners. Oh, the Prussians! If you but knew what wretches they are. I shall never forgive them the way they treated me. When, after the battle of Sedan, I was asked to surrender with the others, I flatly refused to give my word of honor that I should not take up arms against the Prussians were I let free. With a great many officers, and about, I should say, 50,000, or, perhaps, even 60,000 men, we were marched into some fields, where, in the pouring rain, without either great-coat or fire, without a single morsel of food, we were kept for two days. On the third day a Bavarian officer came up to me, and asked whether it would not be better for me to give my word of quietly returning home. I refused. An hour afterward they brought us some bread, which we all devoured. When I say all, I am mistaken, for one out of twenty men had already died of cold and hunger. You cannot fancy what it was. There were no tents for us, no great-coats, no fires. It was raining continually, we lay in the deep mud, wet through—in fact, just as if we had been soaked in the water. We had all been robbed by the soldiers. Fortunately for me I had all my gold in my leathern belt, and it escaped their notice. In the afternoon they allowed us, for the first time, to try and light some fires. My limbs were so stiff that I could hardly move. A few wounded men were lying on my side; they died during the night. The men used to lean against each other so as to keep a little of the cold away. Whenever a man used to die, his clothes were taken from him, so as to try and keep the rain away. Whenever a man complained too loud, the Bavarians or Prussians used to half murder him with the butt-end of their rifles. On the next day we got some soup; in the morning we were formed into battalions, and I should fancy some 8,000 or 10,000 of us marched off to Prussia, as we were told. You know how well I speak German. I asked a Prussian officer, a Captain, as myself, where we were going to. His answer was, 'Hold your tongue, you French pig, or I'll blow your brains out.' A Prussian band was playing some national airs as we were marching along. An immense number of Bavarians and Prussians were looking at us, making the most shameful jokes at us. Whenever a man, feeling too weak and tired to move along, used to stop, he received a knock with the butt-end of a rifle, with the word 'Forwartz.' If too ill and too weak to be able to get up and march, we used to be kicked and knocked about till unable to move any longer. We were then thrown on one side of the road, and there left to die."

This officer escaped to Belgium, where he wrote this letter.

ENGLISH COMMENTARIES.

The commentary on all this in today's Times is delightful. "It is too plain," it says, "that war is doing its work on the temper of both nations. The barbarism of the Turco, after infecting the French Army, is spreading through the French people, and the Germans, while complaining with perfect justice of the military arrogance of their enemies, are in some little danger of attempting to check this offensive attitude by copying it themselves." And the Times admits at last that "if Paris is attacked it will be defended obstinately and bloodily." I am writing this letter, as you see, with a pair of scissors, but I do not see that I can do better. It is well that people should reflect upon the horrors of war in order that they may try to put an end to them.

A SURGEON'S WORK.

BARTON SMITH, writing from near Metz, also gives some idea of a Surgeon's work when the fighting is over.

"On arriving at St. Barbe, the distress for medical assistance beggars description. Men at the point of death lay in straw in sheds, others with badly-broken limbs were hopping about, leaning on carts or sitting on the wet ground. One of the Surgeons had 180 poor fellows for his day's portion. My services were most gladly accepted, and the first day I had about sixty patients to make every arrangement as to room, &c., to set their legs or arms. Of course, in such times, the villagers have to put up with a great deal. These poor families I was compelled to take all but one room each from. It seems hard, but is, of course, vastly harder for those who would otherwise have died on the wet ground, close to comfortable rooms. My duties begin at 6½ in the morning, and often at 12 at night I go round for the last time. Every single patient I dress (the wounds) twice a day with my own hands, and as several of those sixty have two, and some three, distinct wounds, each with two openings, you may fancy it is pretty hard work."

NO PEACE.

Enough of this; but we are likely to have much more of it in and around Paris. The hope of an honorable peace has died out, and the French had rather die out too, than accept such a peace as the Times and M. BISMARCK are willing to give them. Paris, I feel sure, is ready and even eager to fight. The spirit of the people rises every hour as the enemy gathers around the walls. A new wall of barricades is being [illegible] the others, and another circle will be drawn inside this, if needed. The Prussians can do little until their siege guns arrive and are in position. They are sending furs from Germany, and they will need to send firewood as well. If the Parisians are to "cook in their own juice," those who stand outside to baste them will need great-coats. It is generally very cold in Paris at Christmas.

A circus manager at Wilmington, N. C., who failed to make a balloon ascension in accordance with his programme, stepped before his audience and apologized as follows: "It is with lugubriousness that I have to attribute my failure to oscullatory vibrations and ulterior causes."

A clergyman residing in the vicinity of Boston, who has had some trouble with his flock, recently read the following notice, when about to leave his pulpit for the day: "There will be a meeting of the society on Thursday evening. The first part of the evening will be devoted to prayer and conference, after which, if there is grace of God enough left in the breasts of the brethren, they will proceed to the transaction of business."

The Yellow Fever and the Board of Health.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A morning paper states that there must have been a difference of opinion among the medical officers of the Board of Health in regard to the nature of the fever on Governor's Island. This is evident from the reports of that body. It is stated that Dr. COTMAN, an old resident of Louisiana, and perfectly familiar with yellow fever, visited the Island several weeks ago, at the request of Dr. MORRIS, and decided the fever to be yellow fever; he also saw the KELLEYS, and again positively declared the disease of which they died to be yellow fever. And yet, in the face of the opinion of this expert, Dr. MORRIS, who had never before seen a case of yellow fever, states in his official communication to the Board that "the fact is established beyond doubt that it is not yellow fever, or a disease of a contagious character." It seems incredible that the Sanitary Inspector could make such a declaration with the opinion of Dr. COTMAN before him, and the catalogue of cases following one another in exact relation to their exposure to the sick. That the sickness of the KELLEYS was due to contagion must be as clear to a logical mind as that effect ever followed a cause. If such counsel as this is to guide the Board of Health, epidemic diseases of the most fatal type can domesticate themselves in our midst with perfect impunity.

The Maryland-Virginia Oyster War—Whereabouts of the Fleet.

The Chesfield, (Md.) correspondent of the Baltimore Advertiser furnishes the following particulars of the Virginia-Maryland oyster war of the present season:

None of our dispatches or letters from the scene of the recent outrages upon the people of Maryland have made mention of the squadron commanded by "Commodore" DAVIDSON. This naval force, which has displayed considerable energy, at an expense of some hundreds of thousands of dollars to the people of Maryland, in arresting citizens of this State for alleged violations of the law, has been conveniently absent from the waters of Tangier and Pocomoke Sounds when its presence was necessary to protect them from outrage by armed vessels from Virginia. It was rumored yesterday that the flag-ship of the fleet had anchored in the Basin opposite Jones' Falls, and was about to ascend that stream in pursuit of vessels engaged in violating the oyster laws by "dredging," or "tonging," or "bobbing for eels," without a license. One of our reporters immediately proceeded to that point and found that his informant had mistaken one of the machines used in cleansing the channel of the Basin for the flag-ship. The employees of the mud-machine and its tenders were very indignant; declared they knew nothing about the oyster navy, and "didn't want to know." All with whom the reporter conversed expressed an anxiety that the mud-scows should not be confounded with the oyster fleet.

The reporter then visited Light-street wharf, the head-quarters of the large fleet of vessels engaged in the oyster trade—from the energy of whose owners and crews the State realizes a large revenue—and soon made inquiries as to the whereabouts of the "fleet." There were various reports, and many of a rather indefinite character. Some who did not know the exact location of Mr. DAVIDSON's command expressed the hope that he had taken harbor in particularly warm quarters, but all agreed that the navy was a humbug, and a useless and expensive one. Comparing all the reports upon the subject, it appears that the fleet, or its commander, can be found in Chester River.

Hon. ISAAC D. JONES, Attorney-General of Maryland, who was requested some days since by Gov. BOWIE to inquire into the matters in dispute, and take such action as might be necessary to protect the citizens of Maryland in the exercise of their rights, last evening left Baltimore for Drummondtown. There is no man in Maryland more thoroughly conversant with the subject than Mr. JONES. As a Commissioner on the part of Maryland to adjust the boundary line he has thoroughly acquainted himself with the question. It is understood that he will endeavor to procure the release of the men now under arrest in Virginia, and the return of their property, until the time fixed for their trial, and will also request that no further interference be made by the Virginia authorities with citizens of Maryland, in the disputed waters, until the whole matter is definitely settled by the Courts.

Providing for Homeless Children.

Mr. E. TROTT, of the Children's Aid Society, left this City, Wednesday, with a large company of homeless boys and girls, for the purpose of providing them with homes at the West. Mr. TROTT has been exceedingly fortunate as a Western agent, and has found comfortable homes and employment for a large number of children. Mr. TROTT has taken thirty-eight companies West during the past seven years, making an aggregate of over 2,000 children. This number is only a small proportion of the entire number of children sent West by the Children's Aid Society. One of Mr. TROTT's earliest proteges is now a preacher of the Gospel. Some time ago Mr. TROTT found an intoxicated and unfortunate girl in an ash-box, from which he rescued her. He procured her a home in the West. She has since written to him, thanking him and the Children's Aid Society for their kindness. She says she is now married, has a farm of 100 acres, a large number of cows, sheep, hogs, poultry, and everything that can make her comfortable. She wants Mr. TROTT to send her a homeless girl, for whom she promises to do as much as has been done for herself.

Meeting of the North River Presbytery at Newburg.

The Presbytery of the North River, the successor of the two former Old and New School bodies of the same name, completed their new organization at the First Presbyterian Church at Newburg, yesterday. The session was opened on Tuesday by a sermon from Rev. Dr. WHEELER, of Poughkeepsie, who was elected Moderator. Rev. F. WILLIAMS, of Cold Spring, was appointed Stated Clerk. All of the business transacted was in relation to the new junction. Several standing committees were appointed. All the proceedings were marked with the utmost unanimity. Yesterday afternoon the Elders' meeting occurred in the Union Church, and was one of great interest. In the evening the Lord's Supper was administered at Calvary Church to a large number of communicants. The next stated meeting is to be held at Poughkeepsie on the third Monday in April, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

A. T. Stewart's Latest Enterprise.

The monster hotel now being built under Mr. A. T. STEWART's direction, on Fourth-avenue, between Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets, for the use of working women, has reached the third of its seven stories. The whole building is to be of iron, filled in with brick, and will be thoroughly fire-proof. It will cover an area of 41,000 square feet, the front on Fourth-avenue measuring 192½ feet, and the two fronts on Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets 205 feet respectively. The basement is fourteen feet below the level of the street, and among other conveniences located there, will be an engine for heating the building, moving the elevators, aiding in the laundry-work, and driving the cooling-fans that are to play in various parts of the house. The bath-rooms will also be situated there. The kitchen and laundry arrangements will be conducted on the most approved hotel plans. Ventilating shafts will run from the basement to the roof. The rent of each tenant is not expected to exceed $1 a week.

The Woman's Board of Missions.

The Woman's Missionary Board, an auxiliary to the American Board of Foreign Missions, held its annual meeting, yesterday morning, in the Church of the Pilgrims. The edifice was well filled with an audience composed almost entirely of ladies. Mrs. BLATCHFORD occupied the chair. Miss HART, of Philadelphia, delivered an address, in which she told all that had occurred in connection with this movement in the Quaker City during the past year. The receipts of the Society there, since January last, amount to $16,757.

Miss RHEA, a missionary just returned from Persia, spoke forcibly of the work that woman could do if she only had an opportunity. In no sphere, however, she thought, were there greater possibilities than in that of missionary labor. Mrs. STURGIS, late of Micronesia, and Miss WEST, formerly of Constantinople, also spoke upon the question of female influence on the religion of the world. The meeting was closed by an able address from the President, who exhorted her sisters to continue in the good work they had so auspiciously begun, assuring them that the Lord would, in His own good time, crown their

ST. THOMAS CHURCH.

Dedication of the New Edifice—Three Bishops and One Hundred and Fifty Clergy Present—The Edifice Crowded—Sermon by the Pastor.

Yesterday, the new building for St. Thomas Church, on Fifth-avenue and Fifty-third-street, was dedicated to religious worship. Right Rev. Bishops POTTER, of New-York, LITTLEJOHN, of Long Island, and TALBOT, of Indiana, officiated, and there were 150 ministers present, about half of whom wore vestments, and the remainder were in plain clothes, for whom the front seats were reserved. As the clerical procession entered the church from the cloister, through the eastern door, with Bishop POTTER leading, the twenty-fourth Psalm was recited alternately by the Bishop and clergy, after which the hymn, "Blessed City, Heavenly Salem," was sung by the choir, which consists of Mrs. GULIEGHER, soprano; Miss MEYERS, contralto; Mr. NEILSON, tenor, and Mr. LOMBARD, basso. They were assisted yesterday, by the choir of Trinity Church, whose rectors also were present. GEO. W. WARREN is the organist of the church. The services of the day were arranged as follows:

Venite, sixth Gregorian tone; Psalter, tenth selection, sixth and eighth Gregorian tones; First Lesson, Haggai, second to tenth verse; Te Deum Laudamus, CLARKE, in F; Second Lesson, Revelations fourth; Jubilate Deo, CLARKE, in F; Introit, selection seventy-nine, the Old Church, Kyrie and Gloria, WARREN, in D; Anthem, Psalm LXXIV. 1, 2 and 4, WARREN; Ascription After Sermon, Revelation vii., 12, Dr. BOYCE; Offertory, (from the Oratorio of "Elijah,") MENDELSSOHN.

Sermon by Dr. MORGAN.

The Holy Communion. "Ter Sanctus," WARREN, in G. "Gloria in Excelsis." Recessional Hymn. "Jerusalem on High."

Rev. Dr. FRANCIS VINTON read the opening services, Dr. H. C. POTTER the first lesson, Dr. H. E. MONTGOMERY the second, Dr. RUDDER, of Philadelphia, the Creed, and Dr. SAMUEL OSGOOD the prayers following. The ante-communion service was recited by Bishop POTTER, and the Eucharistic service itself by Bishops POTTER, TALBOT and LITTLEJOHN and Drs. DIX and PRICE. Bishop LITTLEJOHN read the epistle, and Bishop TALBOT the gospel for the day. The offerings taken up are to be divided between the Diocesan Missionary Committee, and the House of the Good Shepherd in the parish. The church edifice has been already fully described, and nothing need be said here save that it has cost about $650,000. It has two organs which cost $15,000, one of which is worked by electricity, and two memorial windows, one being the gift of Mr. LOVETT RODGERS, and the other of Mrs. MOFFAT and Mrs. MITCHELL, the mother of MAGGIE, the famous actress, whose father was present yesterday and occupied a front seat with the ministers.

Rev. A. MORTIMER BRADY, the pastor, delivered a discourse appropriate to the occasion, but without any special scripture text. He congratulated and welcomed the Bishops and clergy and people to the new house. It had been the original purpose that Bishop POTTER should have preached, but that privilege being bestowed, the duty devolved upon the rector of the parish. They did not come, he said, to dedicate the building, but to give it a partial hallowing to fit it for religious services. The edifice is not yet ready for the noble consecration service prescribed by the Convention of 1789, which requires a finished building. This house is not yet complete. Much remains to be done. The top stone of the tower, the tongues of the belfry and the sounds of the organ must proclaim its completeness ere it can be fully consecrated. But it is no derogation to this building that the solemn formula of consecration is withheld to a future day. God dwells here in his essential presence and in the plentitude of his goodness. Nowhere has the Master conditioned the bestowment of blessings upon material surroundings, fixed methods and associations. Jacob found him near in his journey through the wilderness of Paran; David found him also in his wanderings, and Daniel in the lions' den. The Christian heart, waiting in patient faith for God, will find him everywhere. And any edifice with Christ in it will become consecrated with holy memories. The Doctor invoked the divine blessing upon the church, and prayed that it might be guarded from profane intact, and be filled with light supernal.

On behalf of his people, Dr. MORGAN ascribed praise to the Almighty, that after a precarious and unsettled period of nearly five years they now stand within their own parochial home. The Doctor then gave a few historical reminiscences of the old church, which stood for many years on Broadway and Houston-street, and which bore, as he said, the same relation to old New-York as this new church does to the new City. When the old church was first planted, nearly all above it was country. The venerable Dr. CUTTING was its first pastor; the present Bishop of Ohio was subsequently in its pulpit, and the late Dr. HAWKS proclaimed the truth there during his rectorship of twelve years, and left the parish in 1843. Rev. Dr. MORGAN watched over the flock there for ten long years, contending against the devil, and fighting against obstacles and against enemies who always laughed him to scorn. The City has grown so rapidly that the spot which was formerly on its outskirts is now the centre of Metropolitan vice and infamy. The congregation left the spot in 1866 with great regret, but with the fullest conviction that it was the only way to save them from disintegration and death. The closing discourse was preached in the old church, April 29, 1866, and for a year he had no hand in the conregration of Grace Church, during the absence of Dr. TAYLOR, its pastor, in Europe. In April, (21,) 1867, they entered a temporary edifice erected on the site of the present church, and remained there until the walls of the new building, now finished, were raised, and they then found a temporary shelter in the Church of the Resurrection for eighteen months, and left it last Sabbath with feelings of mingled thankfulness, regret and joy.

The Doctor then thanked the wardens and vestry of the church, the architect, (UPJOHN,) builders, sexton and others connected with the erection and care of the new building, and referred briefly to the conservatism of the Church and the pulpit of St. Thomas, in which neither obsolete nor Popish practices or ceremonies find any place, but where the truth, as it is in Jesus, is strictly adhered to, proclaimed, and he prayed that these elements of stability and soundness of faith might be perpetuated.

The Lord's Supper was then administered to over 500 persons, after which the services ended.

Fire-Extinguishing Experiment—The Latest Way of Fighting the Destroying Element.

The process of extinguishing fires by a solution of hydro-sulphate and water, as they doit in Chicago, was practically illustrated, yesterday afternoon, on some vacant lots on Third-avenue and Sixty-seventh-street, where two wooden sheds were erected for the purpose. These were filled with combustible materials, such as 300 tar-barrels, and a quantity of benzine was poured over the entire mass. The machine through which the water passes to become impregnated with the chemical substance is something like a fire-engine, and is designed to act as atendler to such. It consists of two cylinders, which contain air-chambers, and are connected by means of pipes, which are capable of being closed so as to admit only clear water through them, or opened to allow the chemical solution. There are three hose-pipes attached to the machine—one of three-eighths of an inch and one of one-half of an inch nozzle. The water is received iron the ordinary fire-engine, and, passing through the chemical cylinders, is discharged through the hose. The inventors claim that one gallon of water passing through their machine is equivalent to at least twenty-five gallons of unmixed Croton for extinguishing fires; that it will not soil or injure goods, and that an ordinary fire can be put out by it in eight minutes. The water was thrown upon one of the sheds yesterday after the fire had been fully under way about two minutes, and it was put out in ten and one-half minutes. When the roof had been destroyed the frame sides fell in and buried two firemen, named MCGRATH and PONNIER, of Engine No. 8. Considerable excitement prevailed for a few minutes lest they should be burned or bruised. PONNIER escaped easily, but MCGRATH was evidently injured, though he refused the aid of a physician, and walked over to Hamilton Park House, asserting that there was nothing the matter with him. The inventors' engineer, whom they have brought on from Chicago, had his ears scorched also, but not seriously. The second building was set on fire at 4:12 P. M., and three minutes later water was poured on, and in three and a half minutes the framework fell, and in eight minutes from the start the fire was practically out. There were about 1,500 persons on the ground, among them a great many firemen, who gave it as their opinion that the new invention, however good it might be in Chicago, was not adapted to the high and heavy structures of New-York. The half-inch hose is the largest that can be attached to their machine, and it is unable to throw a stream higher than two stories. However, it was agreed that the experiment, yesterday, was not as complete as it might have been, and was not a fair test of the utility of the chemical machines.

The Death of Cassidy, the Ex-Policeman—Witnesses Declare the Wife Innocent of the Alleged Murder.

Coroner ROLLINS made a partial investigation, yesterday, in the case of the ex-policeman, PETER CASSIDY, who died of injuries sustained at No. 79 King-street, by being, as was alleged, thrown out of a window by his wife ANN, during a quarrel. It is now asserted that the deceased accidentally fell out of the window, and that his wife is not guilty of the terrible crime imputed to her.

BERNARD CASSIDY, aged thirteen, a son of the deceased, testified that his mother was not in the room at the time his father fell out of the window, and that the deceased leaned over a chair to sharpen a knife, and being intoxicated was falling out, when the boy seized him and endeavored to prevent the catastrophe. The parents were in the habit of quarreling for nearly three years, and they were fighting when BERNARD returned from school, and he was positive in saying that his mother had gone down stairs when the accident occurred.

MARY MCGRAW, one of the inmates of the house, also states that Mrs. CASSIDY was on a lower landing with her when CASSIDY met with his injuries. A jury was impaneled yesterday. The remains were removed to Brooklyn for interment.

THE LATEST FORGERY.

An Ex-Sub-Treasury Clerk Forges an Official Check for $11,062 50—Attempt to Pass it—Arrest of the Forger.

Yesterday morning, JOHN MILLAR—who was appointed by Gen. DANIEL F. BUTTERFIELD as a clerk in the Sub-Treasury, but was discharged soon after Judge FOLGER'S installment—was arrested for attempting to pass a forged check for $11,062 50 on VERMILYE & Co., in payment for some coupon bonds of the new issue of 1865. Previous to presenting the check, MILLAR called on VERMILYE & Co., and stated that Gen. HILLHOUSE, the present Assistant Treasurer, wished to buy $10,000 worth of new 1865 bonds, and requested that a statement be made out for the amount. The clerk, Mr. PAUL B. ALLEN, then made out a stamped ticket, with which MILLAR left. Shortly afterward he returned with a Sub-Treasury envelope addressed, "Col. VERMILYE; Compliments of Gen. HILLHOUSE," which he handed to Mr. ALLEN. On opening the envelope, the clerk found a United States Sub-Treasury check filled out for $11,062 50 purporting to be signed by WM. G. WHITE, cashier at the Sub-Treasury, and drawn to the order of VERMILYE & CO. Mr. ALLEN noticed an error in the spelling of Mr. VERMILYE'S name, and suspected something wrong. He told MILLAR that he could not give him the bonds unless he was identified by some one, asking him, at the same time, if he could refer to any parties. MILLAR said that he could not, when Mr. ALLEN said that he would go with him and see if he could be properly identified, Mr. ALLEN, at the same time, putting the bonds in his pocket.

MILLAR went with him to the Pine-street entrance of the Sub-Treasury, where he sought to leave Mr. ALLEN, but that gentleman insisted on his accompanying him. Entering the building, MILLAR refused to go further, when he was handed over to Detective SAMPSON. The check was shown to Mr. WHITE, who pronounced it a forgery. MILLAR was then questioned by Detective SAMPSON, and said that the check was given to him by a man in the street, who promised to give him $100 for the obtaining of the bonds. SAMPSON went out into Wall-street to see the man, but not finding him, took MILLAR to the First Precinct Station-house, where he was searched, and in his pocket a blank Sub-Treasury check was found, purporting to be signed by WM. G. WHITE, but different from that which was taken before United States Commissioner WILLIAMS, who, on motion of Assistant District-Attorney PURDY, committed him to Ludlow-street Jail, in default of $20,000 bail. It is reported that MILLAR was at one time Mrs. BUTTERFIELD'S music-teacher, and that he was quite a favorite with the General. He is a young man about twenty-nine years of age. While he was in the Sub-Treasury he was continually borrowing money. It is supposed that he purloined one of the Sub-Treasury check-books and some Government envelopes, and that he made himself familiar with the signature of the dishonest officers.

Sometime ago, a forged Sub-Treasury check for $560 was passed on HATCH, FOOTE & Co., in payment for some bonds. Yesterday Mr. FOOTE and one of his clerks said that they thought MILLAR was the same person who perpetrated the fraud on the latt house. The $560 check was signed with the name of CHARLES M. PATTERSON, Deputy Treasurer, and was a perfect forgery. The name of Mr. WHITE, which was signed to the two checks above mentioned, was well executed.

The Roll of Crime—Proceedings in the Court of Oyer and Terminer Yesterday.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday, Judge INGRAHAM presiding, VALENTINE REICHER was arraigned under an indictment, charging him with the murder of CHRISTOPHER HIGGINS, about two weeks ago, by shooting him with a pistol. He pleaded "not guilty," and was remanded for trial on some future day to be fixed between the District-Attorney and counsel for the prisoner. It will be remembered that REICHER was a watchman at a store-house in Greenwich-street, and shot the deceased while he was waitzing with a young girl in front of the store.

GEORGE NELSON was arraigned under an indictment for the murder of his wife, by beating and kicking her. He pleaded "Not Guilty," and was remanded for trial.

MICHAEL WOLF was arraigned for manslaughter in the second degree. He pleaded "not guilty," and was remanded for trial. This is a charge of abortion. The prisoner was originally under bail in $5,000, but on making application to Judge BARNARD for a reduction, his bail was doubled.

HEWSTON MARSHALL was found guilty of stealing a piece of cassimere from the store of CHARLES H. FREY, No. 46 Leonard-street, and was remanded for sentence.

GEORGE NELSON, alias Georgy Price, a youth of eighteen years, for taking $224 from the bosom of an old German lady in one of the street-cars, was sent to the State Prison for two years.

PATRICK GOUGH, for stealing the watch of Mr. THOMAS HADDEN, in Bleecker-street, about 12½ o'clock at night in September last, was sent to the State Prison for ten years.

LOUIS CANTLER was sent to the State Prison for two years for grand larceny.

SEBASTIAN MILLER, charged with larceny, was discharged; after which the Court adjourned to this morning.

Custom-House Appointments.

The following appointments were made by Collector MURPHY yesterday:

Clerk—First Division, R. K. Sandford, $1,800. Clerk—Ninth Division, G. Van Rauseliaer, $1,400. Inspectors, $4 per day—C. J. Moore, J. R. Farlee, Joseph H. Wilson, William Edwards, D. L. Robbins, F. SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—OCT. 6.

Before Judge Cardozo.

ACTION FOR SEPARATION ON THE GROUND OF CRUELTY—MOTION FOR ALIMONY.

Mary J. Dunnell vs. George H. Dunnell.—This action was brought by the wife against her husband for the purpose of obtaining a decree of separation from bed and board, and a separate maintenance for the plaintiff and her children, on the ground that the husband had been guilty of acts and cruel and inhuman treatment. The case came before the Court, today, on a motion by the plaintiff for alimony and counsel fee pending the act on.

Affidavits were read on behalf of the plaintiff to the effect that the parties were married several years ago; that they had three children; that defendant is a clerk in an insurance office at a salary of $2,500 per year; that about three years ago he began to conceal a course of cruel treatment toward her; that in February, 1867, he threatened "to brain her with a poker," and that during all this three years he very seldom returned home of a night in a state of sobriety; up to 1869 they resided in New-Jersey, and then they came to live in this City; that soon after their removal one of the children was taken ill, and finally died, and that the husband was intoxicated all the time. She also stated that since her removal to this City she has been compelled to support herself and children in the best way she could, and that she is now indebted for the children's board.

In reply to these statements affidavits were presented by the husband, in which all the material allegations on the other side were emphatically denied, except those as to the marriage and the children.

The Court denied the motion, without prejudice to a renewal on further proof.

For the plaintiff, Mr. A. J. Sherman; for the defendant, W. C. Traphagen.

KINGS COUNTY SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Before Judge Tappen.

John M. Schneider vs. The Brooklyn City Railroad Company.—This action was brought by the plaintiff to recover $20,000 damages for injuries inflicted on him through the negligence of defendant on the 18th of November last. It appears that plaintiff was riding on one of the defendants' cars, and that while standing on the front platform, the crown on board began moving back and forward until at last he was pushed off and the wheel passed over his right foot and crippled him for life. The jury returned a verdict for $7,000 for the plaintiff.

THURSDAY, Oct. 6—P. M.

The day has been marked by a greater degree of activity in the different markets at the Stock Exchange than has been witnessed for a long time past. The Railway Share speculation has been irregular, the market having been alternately weak and strong, closing weak. The foreign markets have been buoyant for United States securities, which advanced in London to 91¼@91⅝ for the 5-20s of '62, and 86⅛ for the 10-40s, and in Frankfort to 95 for the former. A moderate business only has been done in foreign exchange, at 108⅛@100⅛ for prime sixty days' bills, the highest rate being asked by the leading drawers, and at 109⅜@110 for prime short sight. There are more cotton bills offering, and sales today have been reported at 108⅛@108⅜. Cable transfers have been made at 110.

The supply of money available on call is ample for the present requirements of the brokers, and the ruling rate to this class today has been 5 ₱ cent., with exceptional loans at 6. The latter rate was paid toward the close of business, and was probably influenced by the currency payments to the Treasury on account of the gold sold yesterday. The currency to be disburs

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE WAR.

Our Brussels correspondent telegraphs that Mrs. WASHBURNE, who is in Brussels, is in frequent receipt of letters from her husband by balloon from Paris. Private messages on open cards, from American residents of Paris to their relatives in the United States, have also been received in Brussels, and our correspondent telegraphs the points of public interest. They show that the city is in no danger of a famine for three months; that no disturbances have occurred as represented in German dispatches; that order and discipline prevail, and that the soldiers improve rapidly, and the population is united, regardless of political opinions, for the defense of the capital. Private telegrams received in Washington confirm these statements. A Tours dispatch says the Prussians have completed their arrangements for the bombardment of Paris. The garrison is prepared to second any movement the French forces outside the Prussian lines may make, and in the meantime the Gardes Mobiles are busy drilling. Bridges on the railroads and highways leading to the city are mined, and will be destroyed as the Prussians advance. The Prussians have formed a depot of supplies at Beauvais, forty-one miles from Paris, in the direction of Rouen.

A battle is reported to have been fought near Chateau-Gaillaird on the 4th inst., in which the Germans were worsted, and compelled in consequence to evacuate Pithiviers with precipitation, leaving large numbers of cattle and much forage in the hands of the French. Another dispatch from Tours gives an account of a fight near Toury, which seems to be the same as the encounter at Chateau-Gaillaird, the date and results being about the same. Cannonading is reported on the 5th inst. at Maintenon, a few miles from Epernon. Two regiments of the army of the Duke of MECKLENBURG-SCHWERIN were defeated, on the 4th, before Soissons by the Gardes Mobiles of the Department of Aisne, garrisoning Soissons. At Lyons military precautions are being taken in anticipation of the Prussian advance into the south of France. The Heights have been fortified, and are garrisoned by regular troops. The Red Republicans seem determined upon action, and a meeting was recently held at Grenoble, at which 2,000 persons were present. Measures for the defense of Normandy from devastation have been taken by the French Government. An American frigate created an excitement at Havre a day or two ago by firing a salute, which was mistaken for the beginning of a German bombardment.

A Berlin dispatch says the coldness of the German Press on the question of annexing Alsace and Lorraine irritates Count BISMARCK. A number of Imperialists collected on the Island of Jersey, including MM. ROUHER, DROUYN DE LHUYS and other magnates of the defunct Empire, is creating some excitement in the public mind in Brussels. Marshal LEBŒUF crossed at night in a small boat. They boast of great power through political connections in England.

GENERAL.

JAMES WILSON was, yesterday, tried at Hartford, Conn., for the murder of WILLARD, the Warden of the State Prison. He began to conduct his own defense, but some of his questions being ruled out he gave it up, and no further defense was made. He was found guilty of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to be hanged on the 18th of October, 1871.

The racing at Narragansett Park, Providence, R. I., was postponed yesterday on account of the storm, but will be resumed today.

Immense quantities of codfish are arriving at San Francisco from the Okhotsk fishing fleet.

Forty thousand people visited the Provincial Exhibition at Toronto on Wednesday.

A meeting was held at Montreal, yesterday, for the purpose of forming a general Board of Trade for the Dominion of Canada.

The Southern Commercial Convention continued its sessions at Cincinnati yesterday. A variety of reports and resolutions were submitted. One of the latter declared against obstructing river navigation by railroad bridges, &c.

Reports from Canada state that all is quiet at Fort Garry, and that Gov. ARCHIBALD is gaining the good-will of all classes of people there.

The election of officers and directors of the Buffalo and Washington Railroad took place at Buffalo yesterday. [BRONSON C. RUMSEY was chosen President; H. L. LYMAN Secretary and Treasurer.

REUBEN CLAPP was sentenced to three years' imprisonment, yesterday, at Boston, for counterfeiting three and five cent coins.

The Twenty-fourth Brigade was reviewed by Gov. HOFFMAN, at Syracuse, yesterday.

Rev. Dr. PINCKNEY was yesterday consecrated as Assistant Bishop of Maryland at Washington.

One of the Anglo-American telegraph cables is injured again near Newfoundland.

The Henry Gray steam fire-engine of Springfield, Mass., is on a visit to Poughkeepsie.

The population of Texas has increased fifty-five per cent. since 1860.

President GRANT and other officials are to visit the Maryland Agricultural Fair, at Frederick, next week.

Gen. GARFIELD delivered an address to a large audience on "Agriculture in the United States" at the Northern Ohio Fair Grounds, at Cleveland, Ohio, yesterday morning.

Some excitment was caused among the depositors of the Hibernian Savings and Loan Society, at San Francisco, yesterday, by a run on the institution, but it is said to be able to meet all its demands.

The foreign imports of San Francisco for the last nine months amount to $12,000,000, her export of merchandise to $11,516,000, and her exports of treasure to $26,723,000.

The corner-stone of the Harvard Memorial Hall was laid yesterday. The fund subscribed for the construction of the building now amounts to upward of $262,000.

A resolution was adopted at a meeting in Cincinnati, on Wednesday evening, in favor of free wharfage.

A Convention was held at St. Louis, on Wednesday, for the purpose of organising a State Temperance Society. It was addressed by Hon. HORACE GREELEY.

The report of a mining disaster at Caseyville, Ill., on Tuesday, proves to be a hoax.

JOHN MILLAR was arrested, yesterday, for attempting to pass a check for $11,062 50, purporting to be signed by W. G. WHITE, cashier of the Sub-Treasury, on VERMILYE & Co., of Nassau-street. He was held in $30,000 bail.

The "Greenest" Man in the State.

There is one charge which his friends seem determined we shall not avoid making against Gov. HOFFMAN, and it is one which we certainly never expected to have to make against a Democratic politician, and that is the charge of too great innocence. From all we hear, he is far too guileless a man for places of trust and profit. The purest and best of human beings, if called on to administer the affairs of his fellow-man, to promote his welfare and guard his interests in official positions, has to profess at least a bystander's acquaintance with sin. No matter how free he may be from vice, he has to learn what vice is, in order to be able to discern the wicked from the good, and protect the unwary from the spoiler. Even ministers of the Gospel have to familiarize themselves with the various modes in which men are led astray. Indeed, the only class in the community whom it has been deemed desirable or possible hitherto to keep free of all knowledge of the grosser forms of iniquity are young ladies. But even in their case, the very desirableness of this ignorance is now matter of grave question; and certainly if women are to be admitted to a share in politics, they will have to seek early acquaintance with the sinful games of bad men. Nobody would think of putting a boarding-school miss—as boarding-school misses now are—in the Governor's chair, or making her a member of the Common Council, or a Police Justice, no matter how perfect might be her acquaintance with the laws of her country.

Nevertheless, we seem somehow to have got a gentleman for Governor who really, at the ripe age of forty-five, seems to possess all the innocence of sweet sixteen. One of the most striking evidences of the spotless purity, not only of his soul, but of his imagination, was his signing the Erie bill. That there could be anything wrong behind that measure he never for one moment suspected. As the affair seemed to him, here was a measure for securing the better management of one of our great lines of communication, passed after mature deliberation by a body of notables, selected by their fellow-citizens for their virtues and talents, to act as the State Legislature, and animated by an almost painful, if not excruciating, anxiety to do the right thing. To go behind their vote would not only have been to put a deliberate slight on an assemblage of estimable gentlemen, but to have wasted precious time. This view of the case, too, was fully fortified by all that the Governor knew of the character of the Erie directors. Doubtless, rumors unfavorable to their integrity had reached his ears, but then of what public man are not rumors of this kind not set afloat? Besides, had he not frequently met FISK and GOULD, and had they not assured him that "it was all right," and that they were managing the road solely with the view of improving the communications of the great commercial Metropolis with the West? FISK, it is true, had an opera-house, but this only showed his love of the noblest of the arts, and his fondness for female society was a taste which he shared with the best men the world has ever seen, and which was probably exercising a very refining influence on a naturally noble, but, owing to want of early advantages, an imperfectly cultivated nature.

Mr. HOFFMAN has, however, lately given us a more striking proof of his simplicity than ever, in taking a strictly young lady view of his duties, in the matter of the redistribution of the Judges. We have explained this transaction already at full length in our columns, taking what, we admit, is perhaps a harsh view of his share in it. Here he is, a prominent member of the Bar; he has been listening for the last seven years to lamentations loud and long over the corruption of the New-York Bench; he is supposed to be acquainted with at least one hundred lawyers who have known instances of it. He is supposed to be aware that property-holders have been seriously alarmed by it, that it has driven great corporations away from the City, or frightened many citizens into taking up their abode outside the New-York District. He has heard that the conduct of some of these Judges on the Bench has been reckless and indecent, to a degree never before witnessed in any age—we are speaking advisedly—in the Courts of a civilized community; their language foul and blasphemous, their discharge of their duties openly fraudulent, and their contempt for the laws, as in the naturalization matter, scandalous beyond example. He knows that there is at this moment no quarter of the civilized world in which the name of a New-York Judge is not a hissing and a by-word. When he was in the City, and sat in his place in church, he found himself surrounded by men and women, who hung their heads with shame when their names were mentioned, and he has heard his pastor thunder time and again against these abominations. He has heard, too, that the reason why the community could not get rid of these unclean animals was that the Ring to which they belonged, had secured such a firm hold of the Legislature that it would be impossible to get them impeached, and that we, therefore, waited and hoped that "something would turn up" so as to effect our deliverance.

Something did turn up. By Herculean exertions, the Judiciary article of the Constitution was adopted, which gave the Governor power to remove from New-York the Judges which have disgraced its Bench, and send them to places wherein the interests in litigation would be so small as not to tempt their cupidity. Of course, we expected he would seize the opportunity joyfully. But he did not; he put it carefully from him, and confirmed these very men in their places. And why, strangers will ask, did he do this thing? Is he a dog? No, by no means. He is, it seems, what the French call an ingenu, though they only apply the term to young ladies. According to his friends, the reason why he did not remove the Judges was, that they did not want to go. They preferred staying where they were. So he had to submit. Under these circumstances, there is really nothing left for us to do but to put our hands on his head and bless him. He is really one of the sweetest creatures we ever heard of. How he has managed to preserve his simplicity through twenty years of practice at the New-York Bar, and some years on the criminal Bench, to say nothing of considerable participation in New-York politics, passes our comprehension. He is a lovely character; but then we submit to the people of the State whether it is safe to continue so guileless a person in a place of so much responsibility. There is, beyond doubt, a good deal of wickedness going on about us, and we do think that our Governor ought to be able to know it when he sees it. A New-York lawyer who, deliberately, having the power to remove BARNARD and CARDOZO, leaves them where they are, either through ignorance or helplessness, ought to devote himself at once to some educational or missionary work. He is not fit for politics.

Gov. Hoffman and the Judiciary.

The extent of the injury which has been inflicted upon the people by Gov. HOFFMAN, in his appointments of Ring Justices to the General Term of this City, is just beginning to be realized by the people. Lawyers have, of course, been familiar with the subject for some time, and many litigants, particularly those who have been involved in proceedings in which FISK, Jr., is concerned, have also learned by sad experience the operations of the system. But the public at large, not having had their attention directed particularly to the matter, were unaware that such appointments had been made, and do not even now understand exactly their effect. To such persons it may be well to state, by way of explanation, that the General Term of the Supreme Court is the body before which all appeals in that Court are required to be heard. In many cases, as no further appeal is allowed by law, their decision is conclusive. In many others—in fact in the majority of cases, where a further appeal to the Court of Appeals is permitted—the delay caused by the crowded calendar of that Court, (always several years in arrears,) the expense of sending counsel to Albany to argue the appeal, besides the disgust caused by the litigation they have already been through, is practically a bar to any further proceedings on their part, and makes the General Term, in nine cases out of ten, in reality the Court of last resort.

The evils which existed under the former system were well known, and the law under which those appointments were made was framed specially to obviate them. In place of the eight districts into which the State had been divided, each with a General Term composed of resident Justices, changed every term, and subject to local influences, whose decisions were constantly clashing—it was intended to substitute four departments, in each of which a permanent appellate tribunal should be established, composed of the most able and respected among the thirty-three Judges of the State, without regard to locality, who would do nothing but hear appeals, and whose decisions would do much to establish a uniform, prompt, and impartial administration of justice.

These provisions met the approval of all lawyers and thinking men, independently of party. It was confidently hoped that the judicial ermine was to be once more rescued from the mire of Erie and similar litigation, and that the knowledge of the ability to obtain a speedy redress by an appeal to an impartial tribunal would prove a check upon the operations of the Ring Judges. The Supreme Court is the highest tribunal of original jurisdiction in the State, and at least four-fifths of all litigation comes before it. The selection of the Judges who should have the exclusive right to review all the decisions that might be made in that Court for the next five years, was the most important and responsible duty that has ever been committed to the hands of Gov. HOFFMAN, or any other official, for many years. It was a matter with which party had nothing to do. It affected the reputation of the State, and the dearest rights of our citizens. So grave was the responsibility that it never was doubted that the Governor would show himself worthy of it, and act in a manner becoming the expectations of the people.

That this has not been the case; that the old evils exist in a worse condition than ever; that justice, as against certain parties, cannot be obtained short of the Court of Appeals is, we again declare, simply and solely owing to Gov. HOFFMAN, who, in his servile obedience to the Ring, has again proved false to his trust. In place of a selection from the best and most respected Judges in the State, he has thrust forward Messrs. INGRAHAM, BARNARD and CARDOZO to be the absolute masters of the City for the next five years. Notwithstanding the defects in the old system, there were certain terms when the honest Judges sitting at the General Term were in the majority, and the Ring advocates were driven to the expedient of allowing their cases to go by default; and then, at a subsequent term, when enough of their friends were on the Bench, moving to open the default and for a re-argument.

Now, however, the Governor has freed them from all such inconveniences. Their friends are on the Bench all the time, and they have things their own way, with none to molest them or make them afraid. The result of this is apparent in the fact of Judge BARNARD'S removing all the cases arising out of the FISK "corner" in gold from the Common Pleas and Superior Courts into the Supreme Court, without even the shadow of an excuse, and in the further fact that FISK or his satellites were parties to nearly half the appeals coming before the recent General Term. From these facts the public can appreciate the full significance of FISK'S notification to MARETZEK, that "if he wished redress the Courts were open to him." Through this indefensible act of the Governor, the hand of the Ring rests upon the throat of every lawyer, and of every one who is compelled to apply to the Courts for redress. Criminals know that convictions against them cannot be sustained so long as they preserve amicable relations with TWEED. There is nothing too bold for the Ring to attempt, for they know that in controlling the General Term the only avenue of redress is closed against them. And all this is done that Gov. HOFFMAN may help his friends. Again we ask, will the public indorse this outrageous abuse of authority by a man who ought to protect the community, but who in reality is the mere agent of the TWEED and FISK gang?

Will Russia Interfere

The doubts which we recently expressed as to the rumored intervention of Russia in the Franco-German war, are confirmed by the progress of events. It is true that the Czar is apparently reinforcing his garrisons in Poland and Volhynia, but this might well be with a Republic declared in France, and one threatened in Italy and Spain. The weak side of Russia is still the Polish frontier, and a democratic uprising in Europe might easily kindle some of the inflammable material in her western provinces. It is reported, too, in our European files, that a military commission has been appointed in St. Petersburg to create a medical reserve force of 1,000 Surgeons; but this may be but a portion of the necessary military reorganization, which the Russian Government is aware is now imperatively demanded, if the Empire would keep pace with the progress of other European nations. It is rumored also that seven divisions of infantry have been sent to Kieff to watch the Galician frontier, and that every factory and gunshop is crowded with work in preparing arms and munitions of war. The massing of troops on the Galician frontier certainly looks more like a threat to Austria than Prussia; and the activity in the gun factories is only a portion of the needed reorganization which we have alluded to above.

VON BISMARCK and MOLTKE would never have withdrawn the Posen-Prussian Corps from the Russian frontier to the heart of France, without satisfactory assurances that Russia would take no part in the struggle impending. There can be no doubt that on this point BISMARCK and the Czar have a perfect understanding. And it is not an improbable supposition that the Prussian diplomat has indicated to the Russian Government that, in return, no opposition will be offered to any plans which Russia may have, of aggrandizement in the direction of Turkey. Russia has no sort of interest in throwing down the gauntlet before Germany because she is about to acquire some French provinces beyond the Rhine. The unity or power of Germany is no obstacle to the Russian ambition, as that has ceased to look toward Europe, but is fixed on Asia. It is true that Russia possesses certain provinces with inhabitants of German blood, but they are not a population which the German Union have ever coveted or are likely to covet. It is true also that the control of the Baltic by the Prussians would be objectionable to the Government of the Czar. But as long as Denmark is maintained in its independence—and England, France and Russia are likely to be united in defending it—there can be no great hindrance to Russian growth in the Baltic in Prussian prosperity. Moreover, the true and natural outlet for the Sclavonic Empire is by the Black Sea and the Dardanelles. When she possesses these, she can give up the North Sea and the Baltic. We see, then, no reasonable probability of Russia's taking part in this great struggle.

Moreover, there are two still more weighty reasons which will keep Russia out of any great war. One is her want of breech-loading guns, and the other, the condition of her internal politics. The Empire is today utterly unprepared for a war with a first-class European Power. There are said to be only breech-loading guns for half the army, and none in reserve. The authorities at St. Petersburg are unquestionably straining every nerve to reorganize the Empire in a military respect. They see the advance of other countries in the implements and aids of war, and they are laboring to put the nation on a par with Prussia and France. But they are perfectly aware that at present she is not so. The Russian Armies would enter into a European contest, singularly inferior in equipment to those of other Powers.

Besides this obstacle, Russia is still feeling the strain of the vast social revolution which has just taken place. Millions of serfs have not been freed and placed in a new relation to the employing class and the State without a profound convulsion of society. She is no more ready for a foreign war than is the United States today. Questions of tremendous import are not yet settled—the relations of labor to land, of classes to one another, and of the emancipated to the Government. The mind of the people is occupied, as it is here, with the new position and rights of the emancipated laborers, and with questions of popular education and political institutions. Everything is yet seething and in ferment. The Czar himself, no doubt, at times, feels the ground trembling under him; and the nobility are struggling to hold their ancient privileges. A nation in such a condition has no heart for a foreign war. We doubt if the mass of the people care anything about either Turkey or Constantinople. Like our own people, they are not so ambitious as they have the reputation of being, and are occupied with their own affairs. It is, however, possible that the Government may have more ambitious plans, and may be preparing for an attack on Turkey; and knowing that the great opponent to such projects would be found in Austria, may be massing troops on the Galician frontier for this purpose.

Another Invasion of Popular Rights.

Those Democratic editors who have flattered themselves and their readers that the signing of the Erie bill was the only grave charge that could be brought against Gov. HOFFMAN by his political opponents, will find themselves greatly mistaken before the campaign closes. Bad as was that act of the Governor, he has been guilty of equally questionable ones since he was placed in his present position. We have already called attention to the way in which he has thwarted the improvements designed to be effected by the new Judiciary article of the Constitution, in order that he might make the Bench of this City subservient to the Tammany Ring. We shall now show how he aided another equally abominable Democratic Ring in Brooklyn in tampering with the jury-box, and screening the rascals who had committed frauds upon the ballot-box in that city.

Our readers will remember the trials which took place in Brooklyn, last Winter, of men who had been indicted for fraudulently canvassing and making false returns of votes cast at the Fall election, and what efforts were made by the Democratic politicians and members of the Brooklyn Ring to break down the prosecution and facilitate the escape of the criminals. But, through the perseverance and energy of District-Attorney SAMUEL D. MORRIS, who was determined to do his duty to the people at all hazards, and who fought the Ring almost single-handed, and under repeated threats of assassination, one of the rascals—the first one placed on trial—was convicted, The Commissioner of Jurors at that time in Brooklyn was a man named N. J. SCHAURMAN. Though not an active politician, he was a Republican, a German, and an honest man, against whom as an official or as a man no breath of suspicion had ever been whispered by anybody. The Ring, finding the first man of their gang convicted, caused the jury that had convicted him to be discharged, and it devolved upon the Commissioner of Jurors to draw a new list of persons to serve as jurymen in the trials yet to come off. It was then that the Ring attempted, first to persuade and then to frighten, Mr. SCHAURMAN into packing a jury, or, in other words, to draw from a list of names, known to be friendly to the Ring, a sufficient number to insure the acquittal of their tools. Mr. SCHAURMAN peremptorily refused to do anything of the kind, and, in spite of their threats, made up a list of names comprising respectable citizens and men of integrity, representing both political parties; and from this list another jury was drawn which promptly convicted the second man brought to trial.

The Ring then vowed vengeance against the Commissioner of Jurors, as well as against the District-Attorney, and set to work to effect the removal of each of them. With the District-Attorney they found it a difficult matter, and they have not succeeded even to this day, although they are still trying to compass their object, and are assisted to the extent of his power by Gov. HOFFMAN. But with Mr. SCHAURMAN they found it less difficult. His term of office would expire about the 1st of May last, but it was known that he would be reappointed. The appointment of a Commissioner of Jurors was then vested by law in the Sheriff of Kings County, the District-Attorney, the County Judge and the City Judge. There was nothing for the "Ring" to do but to go to the Democratic Legislature, then in session, and get the law changed, so as to put the appointment in other hands. This was immediately done. A bill was introduced by a member of the Brooklyn delegation, taking the appointment of the Commissioner from the hands of the above-named officials, and placing it in the hands of the Surrogate, the City Judge and the County Treasurer—all well-known friends of the "Ring." The honest Democrats of Brooklyn, who did not know HOFFMAN'S real character, all said that he would not sign such a bill if it passed, knowing, as he must know, that its only object was to get rid of a faithful officer, whose solitary offense was that he refused to tamper with the jury-box in order to screen perpetrators of fraud on the ballot. But these honest Democrats did not know their man. Gov. HOFFMAN was not only willing but anxious to sign the bill—so anxious, indeed, that he affixed his signature to it before it had been in his hands forty-eight hours. The bill passed the Senate on the 13th day of April. On the same evening our Albany correspondent telegraphed the following, which was published in the TIMES of the next morning:

"The vilest piece of party legislation that has been conceived here this Winter was consummated in the Senate today. That body concurred in a bill that had already passed the Assembly, legislating Mr. SCHAURMAN, the Commissioner of Jurors, of Brooklyn, out of office. The paltry excuse for this act is that Mr. SCHAURMAN is a Republican, and a Democrat wants his place; but the real reason is that he drew a jury of respectable, unbiased men to try the election frauds in that city, instead of packing the jury with the vagabonds who participated in the frauds. Mr. MORRIS, the District-Attorney, himself a Democrat, used his best exertions to prevent the passage of the bill, but his efforts were unavailing. He will now try what can be done with the Governor. If Mr. HOFFMAN signs this bill after knowing the motive that prompted it, and the object to be gained by it, he will lose the respect of every honorable man of all parties."

The bill went to the Governor on the afternoon of the 13th of April. On the 15th of April our correspondent wrote as follows:

"The Governor has signed the bill whereby the Commissioner of Jurors of Brooklyn is to be legislated out of office to make room for a man who will pack juries at the dictation of the ballot-box stuffers of that Ring-ridden city. It is evident that Mr. HOFFMAN does not intend to be a candidate for next Governor."

And yet Mr. HOFFMAN is a candidate for next Governor, and has the assurance to ask the honest citizens of this State to re-elect him to an office which he has prostituted to the service of corrupt Rings, ballot-box stuffers, and repeaters.

The German residents expelled from France have prepared a petition for presentation to the King of Prussia, setting forth their claims to an indemnity for their forced exodus. They complain, with every appearance of reason, that the late decree which compelled all Germans to leave France within three days meant utter ruin to a very large proportion of them. "In the places of business, the workshops and the dwelling-houses, everything had to be left as it stood." In the Department of the Seine alone eighty thousand persons were obliged to leave business and property, and in some cases wives and children, to flee from the country of their adoption "to which they had for years devoted their energy, and the prosperity of which they had done much to secure." The money losses of the Germans expelled from all parts of France are estimated as amounting to two hundred millions of dollars in gold. At this rate the Republic will soon have a very formidable bill to pay.

A French success near Pithiviers, about twenty miles north-east of Orleans, is, even when joined to the gallant stand that is being made around Soissons, rather a small morsel of comfort to a nation, writhing under the heel of the invader. Around Paris there is the lull that precedes the storm. The deadly hail of shot and shell has not yet been felt within the walls, and the daily life of the city seems to proceed tranquilly under the shadow of the impending thunder-cloud. Every day of breathing-time that Paris can gain for the provinces still untouched, is a substantial advantage to France. But will the fiery ordeal find the Capital as resolute as was the citadel of Alsace?

In these days of rapid international communication we are frequently reminded how small the world is becoming. The connection is not very obvious between a campaign in France and a newspaper war in the City of Mexico. That there are French and Germans, and sympathisers with both in that order-loving capital, may sufficiently account for amenities like the following. The French organ remarks, with reference to an article in its American contemporary, whose sympathies are German: "As to the author of that article, he must have written it while being drunk, or he has stated what he knew to be false." Elsewhere, the English-speaking editor is recommended to have "his supplement redracted by other people, who are not drunken, that his author's mouth may foul, and his entrals may be worm-eaten." The italics and orthography are those of the translation of this literary curiosity, as furnished by the journal attacked. Anybody would suppose that the writer belonged to the staff of the New-York World.

Germany is being slowly aroused to a sense of the necessity for an early peace. From a communication which we publish this morning, it will be seen that even a few weeks ago the better sense of the nation was beginning to recover from the first thought of exacting along with victory a bitter retaliation. As indicated in this morning's dispatch from our special correspondent, the tone of the German Press is becoming more averse to conquest. The world has believed that, in defeating France, the Germans would prove that they did not take up that lust of territory which their rival had been compelled to lay aside. The danger of having a new Venetia in Alsace and Lorraine is evidently beginning to be recognized by the German Liberals.

The Italian opera is really needed to give the finishing touch to the most brilliant dramatic season New-York has ever known. We hear no more of Signor MUZIO'S great troupe, which was engaged for Paris, but being unfortunate warblers, in the category of "useless mouths," were rejected by that unfortunate city. The rumor that they intended to seek consolation in New-York thus far lacks confirmation. It is said, however, that Mlle. NILSSON may be induced to sing in opera, if the Academy of Music can be secured for that purpose, and that there are difficulties in the way which the stockholders of that house could remove. If this is really the case, we trust those gentlemen will evince the public spirit they have exhibited to advantage before, and smooth the path of Mlle. NILSSON to a consummation sure to be hailed with delight by our whole musical community.

There have lately been several cases of drowning, voluntarily or otherwise, from ferry-boats plying to and from New-York. We seldom or never hear of an instance where the unfortunate who has fallen or leaped into the water is saved. The fact seems to show either a want of skill and presence of mind, or a want of humanity, on the part of captains and pilots having charge of the boats. Of course a steamboat goes very swiftly through the water; but for that very reason she can return quickly on her course in the event of an accident. The law obliges certain life-preservers to be carried, but we hear little of their effectual use in these emergencies. There is plainly something lacking, either in organization, material appliances, or a proper feeling for the value and sacredness of human life, among the conductors of these vessels, and it is high time that steps were taken by proper authority to have such deficiencies supplied.

M. EMILE DE GIRARDIN has won his bet after all. No German corps d'armée marched through Paris on the 15th of September, or before it, and consequently the 20,000 francs he wagered with the Colonel of the Sixth Prussian Hussars has been fairly gained by the French Journalist. It is said that M. DE GIRARDIN, on accepting the original wager, immediately made over the sum at stake to the fund for the wounded at Paris, so that the loser must in honor make immediate payment at the Central Office in the Champs Elysées. Perhaps, however, the Colonel may arrange to set off his loss against some of those of M. THOMAS, the sanguine Parisian notary, who bet large sums that the French Army, long before this, would be in Berlin.

WASHINGTON.

President Grant and the Missouri Republicans—Southern Quarantine and the Delivery of Mails—Publication of Astronomical Observations—Appointments—Personal Matters—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Nearly everything that has been said regarding the attitude of the President toward political affairs in Missouri has been without warrant. So far as his position is concerned, I believe I am correct in saying that it is not the intention of the President to interfere in the elections of any State, in the sense in which that word is used by partisans, but that his sympathies are most decidedly with that party in Missouri which represents the regular Republican organization, there is no doubt whatever. He has expressed his reprobation of the bolt in very decided terms, regarding it not only as unwise, but as unnecessary and inexcusable. He believes the very object sought by the bolters could have been best accomplished by their remaining in the party, and that the effect of the success of the bolt will be to place Missouri in the condition of Tennessee, producing a Democratic victory. While he will probably not do anything that will seem like persecution of those who bolt the regular nomination, it will not be safe for them to expect that their betrayal of the party is to be sustained by any share of the Federal patronage.

INTERRUPTION OF MAILS BY QUARANTINE.

It has been decided at the Post-office Department that mail contractors will not be held responsible for failures to deliver the mails according to contract, when such failure is caused by Quarantine, established to prevent the spread of yellow fever. Nearly the whole mail service of the Gulf coast is now disarranged by this cause, all the ports east and west of New-Orleans having been placed under Quarantine for both railway and steam-boat communication. Thus Mobile is quarantined against New-Orleans, and Key West against Mobile.

POPULATION OF TEXAS.

According to the census returns the population of Texas has increased fifty-five per cent. during the last ten years. This is only about half as much increase as her people expected.

SENATOR MORTON.

The President, to-night, received a dispatch from Senator MORTON, who is at the Magnetic Springs, Lansing, Mich., stating that he would be in Washington in the course of ten or twelve days.

MARSHAL SHARPE.

Gen. GEORGE H. SHARPE, United States Marshal of New-York, was here today, on business connected with the census returns. What little time was left him after attending to these matters he devoted to the details of the political campaign in New-York.

RECEPTION HOURS AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

The recent announcement of the hours for the reception of visitors by the President was erroneously printed. It should have read that the President will hereafter receive visitors each day, after 12 o'clock, save on Cabinet days.

NEW-YORK CUSTOM-HOUSE APPOINTMENTS.

Secretary BOUTWELL has confirmed the following appointments in the New-York Custom-house: R. K. Sanford, Clement A. Loomis, Gratz Van Rensselaer, clerks; J. R. Butler, W. T. Wrightmeyer, Cornelius L. Alvord, storekeepers; Wm. Edwards, P. R. Fallee, Wm. V. Leggett, David L. Robbins, P. H. Wilson, C. T. Moore and Francis Page, Inspectors.

ASTRONOMICAL OBSERVATIONS.

A large quarto volume, elegantly printed, has just been published, by authority of the Secretary of the Navy, of the astronomical and meteorological observations made at the United States Naval Observatory during the year of 1867, with an appendix of reports on the observations of the total eclipse of the sun of AUG. 7, 1869, and among them that of Commodore B. F. SANDS, the Superintendent. The various phases of the eclipse are beautifully illustrated with cromlechs, and the instruments used by the several parties particularly described. There are many other matters of a scientific character in the volume.

LABOR AND SUBSISTENCE STATISTICS.

Mr. EDWARD YOUNG, Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, has addressed to the Assessor's office of Internal Revenue, a circular making inquiries in regard to the price of labor, cost of subsistence, the value of land, prices of farm stock, manufacturing and other industries, and facilities for transportation in each section of the country. Mr. YOUNG'S report on labor and subsistence was issued during the last session of Congress, and has been in large demand and has been especially sought for as a source of information for intending emigrants. The object of the present inquiry is to furnish more extensive statistics for the benefit of this class of persons, and at the same time to bring the information down to the latest date.

OFFICIALS INVITED TO THE MARYLAND FAIR.

Today, a committee of gentlemen, consisting of Dr. SCHLEY, W. H. FALCONER, Col. DENNIS, Major BRENGLE, and CHARLES H. KEEFER, editor of the Frederick Examiner, arrived in this city, and called upon the President and members of the Cabinet for the purpose of inviting them to visit the agricultural fair to be held at Frederick, next week. The President thanked the Committee for their invitation, and promised to be present at the fair. The members of the Cabinet, the Mayor of Washington, the Commissioner of Agriculture, W. W. CORCORAN, and other distinguished gentlemen were invited, and will attend. The Marine Band will accompany the visitors from this city. While here the Committee were in charge of Secretary CRESWELL, who paid them every attention and courtesy.

DANISH CONSULS.

The President has recognized C. T. J. MOLLER as Vice-Consul of Denmark for the State of Michigan, and R. E. HEIDE as Vice-Consul of Denmark for North Carolina.

CONSECRATION OF A BISHOP.

The consecration of Rev. Dr. PINCKNEY as Assistant Bishop of Maryland took place today. The Bishops of Maryland, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina and Pennsylvania took part in the ceremonies, in the presence of many witnesses.

The Ring Alarmed at a Startling Discovery.

Controller Connolly's Appointment Thought to be Illegal.

Consequent Confusion in the Ranks of the Democracy.

A New Controller to be Elected in the Fall.

Important Meeting of the Republican General Committee.

THE RING ALARMED.

A Startling Discovery—Their Albany Legislation wont Hold Water—Amending the Charter Through the Tax Levy Decided Not to be Legal—A Controller to be Elected in December—Who Shall it Be?

In our review of the legislative tricks of the Tammany Ring, published in the TIMES of Thursday week, we showed how the Ring, after having induced many Republicans in the Legislature to vote for their charter, set to work immediately to violate all the promises they had made, and to annul many of the best features of the charter they had just adopted. Among other counts in our indictment, we called attention to the fact that they smuggled a clause into the Tax Levy making the office of the Controller of this City, which had always been an elective office, and was continued as such by their charter, subject to their control. The clause abolished the office of Controller as an elective office, and authorized the Mayor to appoint a Controller for the term of four years ending on the 1st of January, 1875. By this manœuvre they intended to make sure their grip upon the purse-strings of the City and at the same time prevent an overhauling of the accounts of the Controller's office and an exposure of their past robberies of the City treasury which they knew would take place in the event of the election, by the people, of an Anti-Ring man to that office. They did not dare to submit the proposition openly to the Legislature to make this radical change in the important office of Controller, but resorted to that never-failing budget of frauds—the City Tax Levy—and there inserted the clause above-mentioned, which passed through the Legislature during the last hours of the session, without the knowledge of a dozen members of either House. The iniquity was consummated, according to programme, by Mayor HALL, who proceeded forthwith to appoint RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, one of the Ring, to another four years' term of office. Everything was now lovely, and the "goose hung high." The Ring had got everything to suit them. All Departments of the City Government were under their control, and the funds in the City treasury were to be disbursed for four years to come by one of their own men. So highly elated was the Controller at the rich prospect ahead that, we are told, he immediately set to work to build a $350,000 palace on the grand Boulevard, corner of Fifth-avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-first-street, which should rival, if possible, the down-town establishment of "Boss TWEED." But alas for human calculations—especially the calculation of the wicked. Some prying, meddlesome lawyer has been nosing about among his musty old volumes of law, and has discovered, to the consternation of the Ring, that their carefully-constructed Legislative bucket won't hold water—that, in point of fact, it has no bottom. Legal lore for once coincides with common sense, and declares that the City Charter of New-York, which is the fundamental law of the Municipality, cannot be subverted, altered, or amended by a brief paragraph craftily smuggled into a Tax Levy. The office of Controller, say the lawyers, is still an elective office and must be filled, as the Charter provides, by the vote of the people at the coming election.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?

This is the all-important question that the Ring are now puzzling their brains about. On first discovering the predicament they were placed in, the majority of the Ring were in favor of ignoring the opinion of the lawyers altogether, and holding on to the office in spite of the law. "Have we not got the Judges all on our side?" said they; "and will not they decide the case as we tell them to?" "True enough," interposed one of the gang, "that is so, as far as the City is concerned; but then there is the Court of Appeals; you recollect how they decided against us in that affair of the Board of Councilmen. I am not quite sure myself that this altering the City Charter through the Tax Levy is exactly the square thing—legally square, I mean." Various suggestions were made by different members of the Ring as to the best mode of relieving themselves from the dilemma; some suggesting that it would be best to run a candidate for Controller at the ensuing election anyhow, and if he should be elected, well and good; if not, then that they should fight the battle in the Courts, and give the people a taste of the "law's delay," as well as the "insolence of office." It has not yet been fully decided by the Ring, as we are informed, whether they will run a candidate for Controller or not. But whatever they may finally conclude to do, there is no doubt that a candidate for Controller nominated and elected. He is to be a man of the people—a man whom everybody has heard of, and whom everybody respects; a man who will draw thousands of citizens to the polls who have not voted for years. That man is ANDREW H. GREEN, the man who, by his honest and economical management of the Central Park, had won the respect and confidence of honest men of all parties, but who, since the Ring got control of the Park, has been compelled to stand aside and see such men as PETER B. SWEENY and TOM FIELDS appropriate to themselves the honor and the credit which he had gained by years of toil. With Mr. GREEN as guardian of the City Treasury, our tax-payers will have some assurance that their money will not be squandered to enrich half a dozen members of a Ring, to subsidize a venal Press, and to support hordes of idle vagabonds throughout the State, whose only business is to perpetuate the power of this self-same Ring. They will be allowed to know what is done with their money, who draw pay from the City Treasury, how much they draw and what it is for, all of which is carefully concealed from them by the present Controller. The "pay-rolls" of the City will be open to the inspection of the public, and the quarterly reports of the condition of the Department, which have not been published for two years and a half, will once more see the light. It is high time there was an overhauling of the records of the Controller's office, and Mr. GREEN is just the man to do it.

We understand that there is to be a mass-meeting in Wall-street on Monday next to take into consideration this and other matters connected with the management of our City Government, and every man who desires a reform in Municipal affairs should make it a point to be present.

CONNOLLY'S PROMISES.

A correspondent, who signs himself "Quere," asks what proof we have that Controller CONNOLLY promised to appoint Hon. CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW as one of the Republican Tax Commissioners instead of NATHANIEL SANDS. Our proof is the statements of men to whom the promise was made. It will be time enough to give their names when Mr. CONNOLLY denies that he made the promise. The fact was stated by us incidentally, and was in no way essential to the argument of the article in which it appeared. But since "Quere" deems the point one of importance, we will now state further that not only did Mr. CONNOLLY promise to appoint Mr. DEPEW, but that, had it been known that Mr. SANDS was to be the man selected, the law creating the new Board of Tax Commissioners would never have passed a Republican Legislature. Mr. SANDS at the time was not known as a Republican, or in any way identified with the Republican Party—and God forbid that he ever should be.

NATURALIZATION FRAUDS.

The World has the following:

"The Naturalization law passed by Congress is nothing more nor less than Know-nothingism in a new form. It strikes indiscriminately at all who were born abroad."

Now, why don't the World print the "Naturalization" law, as it calls it, which was framed at the last session of Congress, and let its readers see what it is? It knows perfectly well that Congress has passed no "Naturalization law," but simply a law to prevent frauds in naturalization, and in illegal voting. The law imposes no "new requirements" whatever upon foreigners seeking to become citizens. It simply requires them to comply with the legal forms which have always existed. Any honest alien who has a right to naturalization will find no difficulty in getting his papers. It is only the dishonest native Democrat, who seeks to induce the unnaturalized citizen to commit perjury and forgery, that objects to the law.

LOCAL POLITICS.

Republican General Committee—Important Action—Republicans Holding Office under Tammany to be Excluded from Nominating Conventions.

The Republican General Committee met last night at No. 687 Broadway, Gen. JOHN COCHRANE, presiding. There was a good deal of "piping" before the Committee was called to order. There were charges made by some of the delegates that Police Commissioners MANIERRE and SMITH had several Policemen present in citizens' clothing, but Commissioner MANIERRE denied the report, and said that he recognized but one such in the room, and acknowledged the right of any of them, while in citizens' clothes, to enter public meetings as other citizens.

The meeting having come to order, the roll was called, and when the Secretary came to the Seventh District, a report was offered in regard to the differences in this District. On motion, its reading was postponed until the close of the roll-call. It was then brought up and the action of the State Committee, appointing Mr. HUGH GARDNER as umpire, and that gentleman's report of the terms agreed upon between the rival organizations, was read and accepted, and the delegates, headed by JOHN D. LAWSON, were admitted. Mr. LAWSON having stated that the District Association had organized with Mr. CLARK President, Mr. T. B. STEWART dissented, and expressed his dislike in the statement. This brought a remark from Mr. LAWSON, for which Mr. STEWART called him to order for using ungentlemanly language.

Mr. F. MANIERRE then presented the report of the Executive Committee in regard to the holding of primaries throughout the City and County on the 12th inst. The County Convention is then to meet at Republican Head-quarters on the 14th, the Congressional Conventions in their respective districts on the 17th, the Assembly Conventions in their respective district head-quarters on the 18th, and the ward or school Conventions on the 19th.

Before adopting the report, Mr. SPENCER offered the following, which was adopted by a vote of 76 to 63:

Resolved, That the secretaries of the respective associations attest the various certificates of election, and that the Inspectors be appointed by the Presidents as inspectors of the elections.

There was a marked discrepancy in the count of the vote by the two secretaries, Messrs. COACHMAN and A. BROWN, Jr., the former giving 70 in the affirmative and 60 in the negative, the latter 69 in the affirmative and 71 in the negative.

This called Mr. SPENCER to his feet, and he moved for the expulsion of the Secretary, ABRAHAM BROWN, Jr., a Tammany politician and officeholder who has frequently made such mistakes, and it was time, he (SPENCER) thought, to settle this matter now.

The Chair announced the correct count, and declared the resolution carried. This, however, did not quiet the Committee, and Mr. E. DELAFIELD SMITH rose and remarked that Mr. BROWN was in the habit of making such mistakes, and it was due to himself and to this committee that he give some explanation of his conduct. This the Secretary attempted by saying that he counted the yeas for the nays, and vice versa. This appeared so lame that the Committee laughed outright.

The importance of Mr. SPENCER'S resolution will be seen when it is remembered that heretofore the Presidents of the respective associations appointed three inspectors and certified the election of delegates to the Convention. As some of those gentlemen are supposed to be in the service of Tammany, the Secretaries who hold the books and rolls are now set to watch the others, and to see that none but true Republicans are elected delegates.

Col. A. J. H. DUGANNE offered the following as an additional clause to the Executive Committee's report:

Resolved, That in any nominating Convention which shall meet under authority of the Republican Central Committee, no person shall be eligible as a delegate who directly or indirectly holds an appointment under the Democratic City Government.

Mr. GRIDLEY added an amendment that no Republican vote for a Democrat for any office.

Mr. DUGANNE would not accept this amendment. He thought that his own resolution was sufficiently clear and strong, and this Committee was fully competent to see that Democrats are not admitted to any of the nominating Conventions.

Mr. WM. A. DARLING moved to lay the amendment on the table, but as this would have carried the original resolution with it, it was withdrawn.

Mr. E. D. SMITH, speaking to the resolution and amendment, said that there might be circumstances which would enable or compel Republicans to hold positions under Tammany Hall, and he knew that there were men in the room holding such positions. But they were as true Republicans and as patriotic as any others, and had done the party good service. Still they are out of place in a Republican Convention. He (SMITH) had no rancor in his heart against any man; but he loved the Republican Party, and he knew that it suffered when Tammany men appear in its conventions. Tammany Republicans cannot vote as independently as they should in such places, and such men should not be in Republican nominating Conventions, nor give their votes to any Democrat of the old or young party. [Cheers.] Unless a man breaks away from this party he was opposed to voting for him. The man who is in the Tammany Democratic Party is in Cymerian darkness, but those who have had light enough to become young Democrats and yet vote for JOHN T. HOFFMAN, he had no respect for them at all. The Republicans should constitute their Conventions of men who don't belong to either the venerable or the juvenile Democracy, but who are black Republicans to the core. [Great applause.]

Mr. JOHN FITCH wanted peace and harmony and union with the Young Democracy, so that the State might be carried for WOODFORD and KAUFMAN. The contest will be sharp enough, and they should not turn any man out of the party who can consistently remain in it. BILL HAVEMEYER must have these Republican office-holders in the conventions and in the General Committee, and if he cannot have them there they lose their places. It would not be right to take the bread and butter out of their mouths, and he (FITCH) wanted to save those men.

Col. DUGANNE said that year after year he had faithfully worked for the Republican Party and voted its tickets, but he was invariably led as one to the shambles to be slaughtered by Tammany butchers—sold out by so-called leaders of the Republican Party. But his eyes had been opened and he now wanted a stop put to this business if it could be done. As no man can serve God and mammon, so neither can one serve the Republican Party faithfully and hold office under Tammany. No matter who opposes Tammany, he was with the opponents to save the Republican ticket in the State, and the ballot-boxes in the City. He sympathized with the office-holders, but called upon them to rally round the flag.

Mr. JOHN H. WHITE opposed the amendment and moved to lay it on the table, but withdrew it again and called for the previous question, which was ordered by a vote of 75 to 54. Mr. GRIDLEY'S amendment was then lost by 73 to 67.

Mr. SPENCER, speaking then to the original resolution, said that this bugaboo about Tammany cutting off Republican heads unless they did as the "Ring" ordered, reminded him of the nursery tale of "Fee, fi fo, fum." He was not afraid of it, and would not vote for the old or the young Democracy—for men who burned orphan asylums and threw negroes into the North and East Rivers. [Applause.] He was opposed, nevertheless, to Col. DUGANNE'S resolution. He denied that the men attacked by it are in the pay of Tammany. They voted for the City charter under the idea and with the assurance that the City was to have a good and stable government, but they are as good Republicans today as those who attack them. [Tremendous applause.] He would not coalesce with any Democrats, but if he was to do so it would be with the regulars, and not with the guerrillas, who have been spewed out of Tammany. When Tammany sent troops to the South during the war, these stayed home and preached treason. [Great applause.]

Col. DUGANNE, seeing that the discussion was growing warm, asked unanimous consent to withdraw his resolution, which was denied, and to enable the yeas and nays to be taken on it, those persons in the room not delegates were ordered to the rear, and about fifty retired. The report of the Executive Committee and Col. DUGANNE'S resolution were then adopted. But immediately after Judge WHITE moved a reconsideration so as to change the time of holding the Convention and primaries, which were then fixed in the order above given, for the 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st and 22d insts., after which the Committee adjourned.

First Assembly District Woodford and Kaufman Club.

A regular weekly meeting of the Woodford and Kaufman Campaign Club of the First Assembly District, was held last evening at No. 122 West Broadway. An eloquent address was delivered by Mr. FREDERICK G. GEDNEY, upon the issues involved in the present campaign. The Speaker concluded with an appeal to all true Republicans to stand by the polls, and see that no fraudulent votes are cast at the next election. The duty of the hour, he said, was to bring back the Empire State to the glorious sisterhood that will cast their electoral votes for the re-election of Gen. GRANT, and that in the conflict harmonious action would insure a victory in November. All individual animosities should be buried for the general good. The question was grander than that of even sustaining the Administration. It was whether a republican form of government should last, and every freeman should stand by his birthright. Mr. GEDNEY was loudly applauded. At the close of his speech the meeting adjourned, with three cheers for the ticket.

The Colored Republicans—Enthusiastic Meeting in the Fourteenth Ward.

A meeting of the Fourteenth Ward Colored Republican Association was held last evening in the basement of Shiloh Church, corner of Prince and Marion streets. This association numbers about 375 enrolled members, and there are 401 colored votes in the ward. Mr. WILLIAM FREEMAN presided, and there was a large attendance of colored men; a few whites taking part in the meeting. A small number of white rowdies entered the room during the proceedings and attempted to disturb the meeting by loud talk, but the colored men paid no attention to them, conducting themselves with great forbearance considering the aggravating circumstances. One white man, with a wooden leg, stumped forward during a pause in the proceedings and called for three cheers for THEODORE ALLEN, which were not given.

The first speaker of the evening was Mr. F. D. CURTISS, who proceeded to show what the colored men owed to the Republican Party, and what the Democracy had done in antagonism to the efforts of the Republicans to elevate and free the colored race. The party of progress had fought slavery as long as it existed, and finally succeeded in destroying it. The Republican Party was organized to do battle with that accursed blot upon the country, and they had fought the good fight nobly and successfully. Now the four millions of men who were slaves were free; they were elevated from a condition which was only equal to the beasts of the field, to one which made them men, and this was owing to the efforts of the Republican Party. The Democrats opposed this emancipation with all their strength, but were defeated in the end. The speaker then proceeded to set forth the acts of the Republicans in accomplishing the emancipation of the slaves, the measures taken to enable them to fight under the banner of freedom, and when the war was ended the legislation which was influenced solely by the Republicans, which gave colored men not only civil rights under the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, but political rights under the Fifteenth Amendment. He warned his hearers to pay no heed to the declarations of Democrats who would make them believe that the Democratic Party had ever been friendly to the colored race. He concluded by telling a story of a colored man who was once called upon to testify against another colored man who was accused of stealing chickens. The witness was to bear witness against his neighbor, but finally being pushed for an answer, he said, "Well now, massa, if I was a chicken and that fellar was around, I'd roost mighty high." The story was greeted with shouts of laughter, and the audience saw the point, and will doubtless roost high when the Democrats seek to win their votes.

Addresses were made by Mr. MOSES JOHNSON, (colored,) GEO. W. FRANCIS, (colored,) President of the Eighth Ward Colored Woodford and Kaufman Club, and by Mr. FREEMAN, President of the Fourteenth Ward Colored Republicans.

Political Brevities.

Hon. S. D. JARRARD was yesterday nominated for Senator by the Republicans of Middlesex County, N. J.

The Burlington County (New-Jersey) Republicans have nominated HENRY J. ILLICK for Senator.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Eighteenth Assembly District Soldiers' and Sailors' Campaign Club, No. 18, was held at No. 459 Fourth-avenue, last evening. Gen. CHESTER A. ARTHUR presided, and Messrs. JAMES B. HUNT and CHAS. S. GRANT, acted as Secretaries. Addresses were made by Gen. JAMES F. HALL and others, indorsing the nominations of WOODFORD and KAUFMAN. Mr. WILLIAM H. POPE, the reader, also recited "Sheridan's Ride."

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Irish Republicans of the Second District, under the auspices of the Irish Republican Association, was held last evening at head-quarters, No. 181 Chatham-street. Addresses on the issues of the campaign were delivered by the Chairman, PATRICK MACK, JOHN MCCUE and others. A committee was appointed to devise measures for a grand ratification meeting of the Irish residents of the district.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

The Efforts to Obtain Recognition in the Massachusetts Republican Convention—Remarks of Mrs. Livermore in Full.

At the Massachusetts Republican Convention at Worcester, on Wednesday, the question of woman's suffrage was introduced by the offering of the resolution which follows by CHARLES W. SLACK, the editor of the Boston Commonwealth:

Resolved, That the Republican Party of Massachusetts is mindful of its obligations to the loyal women of America for their patriotic devotion to the cause of liberty; that we rejoice in the action of the recent Legislature in making women eligible as officers of the State; that we thank Gov. CLAFLIN for having appointed women to important political trusts; and that we are heartily in favor of the enfranchisement of women, and will hail the day when the educated intellect and enlightened conscience of the women of Massachusetts find direct expression at the ballot-box.

Judge RUSSELL, Collector of the Port of Boston, followed with the following:

Resolved, That there is no logical or reasonable answer to the claim of suffrage for civil equality for women; that the subject is not to be treated with ridicule or sarcasm; and that when the women of the State or nation demand equal political rights, those rights ought to be granted and secured by constitutional amendments.

Mrs. LIVERMORE, of Melrose, then arose and was recognized by the Chairman. Her name was received with applause, and in answer to loud calls from the members she went to the platform, and addressed the Convention as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: At a meeting of the friends of woman suffrage, held in Boston at Tremont Temple, on Thursday, Sept. 29, the following was prepared, put into the hands of a State Central Committee, and I am instructed to present it to this body today. With the permission of the President I will read it.

To the Republican Convention of the State of Massachusetts: The undersigned, having been appointed a State Central Committee by the friends of woman suffrage assembled in convention at Tremont Temple, in Boston, on the 29th day of September, 1870, are instructed by and in behalf of said Conventions, to lay before your honorable body the following memorial, with a copy of the resolutions of said Convention attached:

We respectfully represent, That in violation of the Bill of Rights of the Commonwealth, in the Declaration which expressly affirms that "all power resides originally in the people, and is derived from them," the women of Massachusetts—one-half of the entire people—are excluded from political power.

That, in violation of the Declaration of Independence, which declares that "governments derive their just power from the consent of the governed," all the women of Massachusetts are governed without consent.

That, in violation of the fundamental principle of representative government, that "taxation without representation is tyranny," every woman in Massachusetts who is the owner of property is taxed without representation, and has no voice in the amount or expenditure of the taxes she is compelled to pay.

We, therefore, respectfully request that this Convention of the Republican Party, which has abolished political distinctions on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, will declare itself, by resolution, opposed to political distinction on account of sex, and in favor of so amending our State Constitution as to extend suffrage to women on the same terms and qualifications as are prescribed for men.

(Signed,)

Julia Ward Howe, Jacob M. Manning, M. D., Lucy Stone, Henry B. Blackwell, Margaret W. Campbell, Jesse H. Jones, George H. Vibbert, Mary A. Livermore, Wm. G. Gordon, Seth Hunt, James Freeman Clarke, Zelpha Spooner—Woman Suffrage State Central Committee.

[Appended to the paper was a copy of the resolutions adopted by the recent Woman Suffrage Convention.]

Mrs. LIVERMORE, after reading the memorial inquired of the President whether it would be in order for her to make a few remarks to the Convention, and having received an affirmative reply, addressed the Convention as follows:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: I wish you to observe that this memorial aims at nothing more than obtaining the equality of women with men and a recognition of it. We plant ourselves firmly upon the platform which you have established, which you have vindicated by the force of arms, and which, under the leadership of the great God, who has ever stood behind our country in the past and overshadowed it, you have carried forward to a successful issue. We do not ask that you shall lift women up over your heads; we do not ask that you shall oust men from any places and put women into them. We only ask you to carry out to its logical sequence your own declaration, and place us upon the same political platform of equality with yourselves. That all it. If this body were a Democratic body we could urge no very strong claim to it; for during the last fifteen years the women of this State and of this country have worked steadily in their line, with all their might, and with a baptism of the soul from God, for the advancement of the Republican Party. [Applause.] From the days of 1856, when the ringing cry of the Republican Party was "John and Jessie," the women have stood beside it—the majority of the women of this State and of this nation. Twenty years ago we commenced actively agitating the matter of the enfranchisement of women, but when the country was plunged into trouble, and when we found that you were assailed by one portion of it, we immediately held our claims in abeyance, and said, first of all, let us help these men who are our husbands, brothers, fathers and sons—for we are married into the Republican Party—let us help to maintain the integrity of the country in the attack on its national existence, and then bring forward our claims again. We stood by you all through the anti-slavery struggle, carrying all the power we had with us, and when the war came, and you came to us, and touched us in the most vital manner possible, entering our homes, and our friends asking us to favor the enlistment of men into the army, to give up our sons, and our fathers and our brothers, our white lips said, "Yes; go, and God be with you"—although our hearts hung back. Then, gentlemen, while we favored the mustering of the armies, and the enlistment of these true men into it, and bade them godspeed cheerfully, knowing that to many of us there would be no future unclouded with sorrow, and that we had to take our last leave of them for the last time, till God brought us face to face with them on the white hills of heaven. We then set to work to keep the communication between these husbands, brothers and fathers, and ourselves, bright and warm. We established the Sanitary Commission. We put ourselves at the service of the medical department and the country, and said: "Since first of all you have asked of us that grandest service, that greatest giving, there is nothing now that you can ask of us that we shall withhold." You have asked for all of us our hearts and got them; now we give you our head, money, labor, sacrifice, consecration, anywhere. We women piled up, during the war, twenty-four millions of dollars, by sacrifice and hard work. By our ingenuity we carried forward great mammoth fairs, which yielded, in instances, a million dollars each. More than that, we made ourselves aliens in our own homes. Our husbands and children said, "If you have a power to aid in the army, and can help the country, go; you need not trouble yourselves about us." With my own hands, commissioned by DOROTHEA DIX, to give the details to nurses in the Northwest, where I was then living, and where I have lived for fifteen years, I wrote out the details of some eight hundred women who were sent out as the workers in hospitals, on ships and battle-fields, and everywhere. Many of them, a large number of them, never came back. They lie in the South, which is billowy with the graves of men. The graves of fourteen are up there and when I was over ended, very many who had overworked, whose love for country and devotion to liberty had overtaxed their systems, sank from overwork, and today they are not living. The places that knew them know them no more. The Republican Party immediately recognized the new work, took up the new work left upon their hands, and determined that the colored people must have the ballot; and when a convention spoke for women suffrage and the ballot, and said that the colored man ought not to have the ballot until women were enfranchised, the country rebuked them, and we then said we still hold our claims in abeyance until the black men are brought up to the level of the white race. And when we could not persuade ourselves that it was right for us to wait longer we came together in a Convention at Cleveland, larger than this. We organized with HENRY WARD BEECHER as President, and we said, "We can afford to wait: we have the eternal truth of God under our feet. We see victory from afar, and so no delay hinders us, no defeat injures our cause. Gentlemen, there is nothing today, to hinder you from introducing women into your political habitation. It has been built so high and broad and capacious that if the women of the country are all admitted there is room enough for them. They are not ambitious in the sense in which gentlemen use the word. We do not care who goes to the Legislature, we do not care who goes to Congress, whether men or women. We do not care who have a vote in their election, for when the women are taxed, as they are in this country, on five hundred millions of property—only one hundred less than was owned in slaves at the beginning of the war—we feel that we have a right to representation. When we are classed with foolsand lunatics and paupers, we have a right to rebel against it, and we should not be your wives, mothers and sisters if we did not. As you have stretched out your hand, and through the red cloud of war have lifted the black men of the South on to the platform of equality with yourselves, we ask you now, in this time of peace, to simply extend your hand courteously and gallantly, and elevate woman by your side. You cannot, gentlemen, afford longer to ignore us. I mean no menace by it. I mean only that we have at least grown with the growth of the whole civilized world, until today the women of the world are a power. They have heard the voice of God saying to them, "Come up out of your graves and live"—and the world over they are coming up, walking still wrapped in their grave clothes, some not seeing clearly, but all asking recognition. You cannot afford to do without us. You have reason for fear if today you give us the cold shoulder; not because we are in antagonism, or shall get into any conflict, but because the strongest body that has ever yet lived cannot afford to ignore the truth of God; because today, everywhere the world over, in the West, abroad in India, Germany, France, everywhere, women are coming up asking this recognition; and because the time is not far distant when they will obtain it. Look at our own country. See how it has been racked as by a traveling volcano—these women's conventions that signify something, that are carried on by women. Because today, everywhere the world over, in Germany, France, and in all Europe, women are coming to ask a recognition of their rights. See how it has been for the last two years. Look at Wyoming; look at Utah. Utah has enfranchised the women. Through the efforts of the women of that Territory the great reform was carried on, and the Territory was carried for the Republicans by 2,000 majority. I was living in Wyoming when the reform was initiated, and I speak on authority. If the Wyoming women had been asked to vote on this question they would probably have rejected it. If you today pass a resolution indorsing the woman suffrage movement, and I pray God you may, you may expect to be laughed at by some of your old acquaintances when you get home, for women are still beneficiaries of men. The women of Wyoming might have voted down the woman suffrage resolution if we had left it entirely to the Democrats inaugurated the movement and carried it, and gave to woman the right of franchise. What was the result? The women came together and said: "Since we desire purity in legislation more than anything else, we will all vote for the best men." The Democrats have been very unfortunate in the selection of candidates, and although the women of the Territory were under obligations to give their votes to the regular Democratic candidates, yet, in the face of all this they said, "We cannot vote for this man or that man, because he is an immoral man, and we must vote for the men whose names are on the Republican ticket," and in the last election the republican vote was carried by 2,000 majority. There is an answer to the great objection that women do not want the ballot. That is not the question. You did not ask the colored man if he wanted the ballot. You did not wait until the colored people demanded the franchise; and shall women wait until there is an overwhelming majority in their favor? We sent 200,000 names to the Legislature last year; we had our leader and our champions; but it did not amount to a row of pins. That, gentlemen, is not the question. Is it right to give women the ballot? It does not concern you whether women want to vote or not. Your duty is plain. I am talking to men who stand for principle; who consider principle of enough authority to wade through blood and war for it, marching over the bodies of a million dead men to win it. I appeal to you from the words of the Declaration of Independence, of the Constitution of our State, of the Bible itself, to grant our request. I think, under them, I have the right to put in my claim. And let me say that we cannot take the advice of the Boston Journal to the friends of woman suffrage when it says, "Ladies, if the Republican Convention promises you a very little amendment, take it, believing it is a good deal." We cannot do it. We ask you to indorse us wholly and entirely. We have had some little experience already, and we know where our power is. Don't condemn us to run to the Democratic Party, which will take us up if you do not. Let us come to you and be received by you and our rights recognized. Do you not know that by the laws of the Commonwealth it will be three years before we can take advantage of our rights and vote. Today there is before the Supreme Court of the United States a case which, if decided righteously, will carry this matter right away. Mrs. MYRA BRADWELL, educated as a lawyer, having submitted to the most rigid examination, and being questioned and cross-questioned, came out triumphantly. She then immediately applied to the Supreme Court of Illinois for a license to practice law. Being a married woman she had no right under the law to make contracts; the husband and wife being one. She urged her case, and made an argument to the Court so undeniable that the Supreme Court had to go to the wall, and fell back on the old common law. Mrs. BRADWELL retained MATT CARPENTER as her counsel, and has brought the case before the Supreme Court of the United States, claiming that by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution she is a citizen of the United States, and consequently enjoys the rights of the citizens, one of which is the practice of the law and carrying on the business of an advocate. Upon that decision much depends, and it is for the men of Massachusetts to lead in the matter, in this great work of liberty. It was the volunteers of Massachusetts who awoke the world to liberty; it was the blood of Massachusetts which baptized this people in undergoing liberty; and it is for Massachusetts to lead in this great reform. You have nothing to fear. We are your allies. We want to continue to work with you in the future as we have in the past.

Mr. LIVERMORE closed by offering the following resolution:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Convention the time has come when the Declaration of Independence should be applied equally to both sexes; that our Constitution and laws should be so amended as to remove political distinctions on account of sex, and to extend suffrage to the women of Massachusetts on the same terms and qualifications as are prescribed for men.

Mr. BIRD, of Walpole, presented a resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the Republican Party of Massachusetts, having aided in abolishing political distinctions on account of race, should now, in consistency with its principles, provide to abolish political distinctions on account of sexes, and so establish in this Commonwealth a Government of the people, by the people and for the people, upon the basis of impartial suffrage for men and women.

The memorial and several resolutions were referred to the Committee on Resolutions, and were not seen or heard of again. During the afternoon LUCY STONE made a speech in favor of woman's suffrage, and so, also, did Mr. ROBINSON, Secretary of the House of Representatives, who is known as "Warrington."

Congressional Nominations.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 6.—The Republican Convention of the Twenty-eighth District was held here today, and nominated, for Congress, FREEMAN CLARKE for the long term and CHARLES H. HOLMES for the short term.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 6.—The Fifth District Republican Convention, held in this city yesterday, nominated for Congress Col. ISHAM S. FANNIN, of Morgan County, long term, and THOMAS E. BLISS, colored, of Richmond, short term.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The Republicans of the Second District of Iowa yesterday nominated A. B. CORTON, Speaker of the State House of Representatives, for the full Congressional term, and Senator WOLF to the vacancy occasioned by the death of Hon. WM. SMITH.

GENERAL NOTES.

Gen. WOODFORD will speak at Oneida, today, Friday.

The campaign has been opened in Kansas. Joint discussions have been arranged by the opposing candidates.

Gov. BLAISDELL, of Nevada, will retire from political life at the close of his term of office.

WILLIAM F. WRIGHT is the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Third Georgia District.

PERRY MERCER, of Howard County, has announced himself as a candidate for Congress in the Fifth Maryland District.

A Temperance Convention at Fond du Lac, Wis., has nominated CHARLES BURCHARD, of Beaver Dam, for Congress from the South District.

JOHN H. SELKREG has been renominated by the Republicans, for the fifth time, for member of Assembly from Tompkins County. The Binghamton Republican thinks that he will be the choice of his party for Speaker.

JOHN BROWN is the Democratic candidate for Governor in Tennessee. JOHN YOUNG BROWN has been nominated by several meetings as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Kentucky, and the Liberal Republican candidate for Governor of Missouri is J. GRATZ BROWN.

The Liberal Republican nominee for Congress in the Eighth Missouri District, JAMES J. BLAIR, is said to be one of the most eloquent speakers in the State. The Democrat thinks that "he is a much abler and more deserving man than Mr. HEYWARD, the McClurg candidate."

The attempt to defeat the renomination of Hon. GENNERY TWICHELL in the Third Massachusetts Congressional District, according to the Worcester Spy, has been laid aside. "It was as President," says that journal, "in order to give the nomination to Mr. E. W. MORTON; but those who started it, did not get the support they expected. Mr. MORTON has written a letter for publication, declaring that he is no longer a candidate for the nomination."

HARVARD COLLEGE.

Laying of the Corner-Stone of Memorial Hall—The Procession—The Address of Hon. E. R. Hoar—Hymn by Oliver Wendell Holmes—Other Interesting Exercises.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BOSTON, Thursday, Oct. 6, 1870.

The corner-stone of the new Memorial Hall, on the College grounds at Cambridge, was laid today with impressive ceremonies and in the presence of a distinguished company of visitors, among whom were Major-Gen. GEORGE G. MEADE, of the United States Army; Commodore STRADMAN, of the United States Navy; His Excellency Gov. CLAFLIN, Senators SUMNER and WILSON, the Mayor and members of the City Government of Cambridge. The Alumni of the College and all other gentlemen specially invited to be present assembled at Gore Hall at 11 o'clock, and half an hour afterward the procession, numbering near a thousand persons, moved through a portion of the College grounds to the Delta in the following order:

ORDER OF PROCESSION.

Chief of Cambridge Police, F. M. Stimson.
Germania Band, twenty pieces.
Chief Marshal Henry Lee and Aids.
President of the Association of the Alumni, Hon. William Gray, and the orator of the day, Hon. E. Rockwood Hoar.
Chaplains of the Day, Rev. Thos. Hill, D. D., and Rev. Phillips Brooks.
Committee of Fifty, headed by their Chairman, Hon. John G. Palfrey, and Chairman of the Building Committee, Henry B. Rogers.
Trustees of the Sanders Fund.
Architects of Memorial Hall, Messrs. Ware and Van Brunt.
President Eliot and Ex-President Walker, of Harvard University.
Board of Fellows of the University.
Hon. J. H. Clifford and Board of Overseers of the University.
His Excellency Gov. Claflin, and Gen. Walcutt, Gen. Chamberlain, Surgeon-Gen. Dale, and others of the Governor's staff.
His Honor Lieut.-Gov. Tucker and Adjt.-Gen. Cunningham.
Hon. Charles Sumner and Hon. Henry Wilson, Senators from Massachusetts.
Present and past officers of Government and instructors in the University.
Representatives of students who fell in the war of the rebellion.
Officers of the United States Army and Navy, including Major-Gen. George G. Meade, Commodore Stedman, Commander of the Navy-yard, Charlestown, Gen. Foster, Gen. Barstow, of Gen. Meade's staff, and others.
Other military guests, including officers of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion; officers of the Grand Army of the Republic, and volunteer officers who served in the war of the rebellion, specially invited.
Subscribers to the Memorial Fund not of the Harvard Alumni.
Sheriff Kimball, of Middlesex, and Mayor Harding, and other officers of the City Government of Cambridge.
Students of Harvard College who served in the army and navy during the war of the rebellion, numbering about fifty.
Alumni of Harvard College in the order of their classes.
Undergraduates in the order of their classes.

The exercises at the tent opened with music and the singing of LUTHER'S psalm "A Mighty Fortress is our God," by the chorus of the Handel and Haydn Society. Rev. PHILLIPS BROOKS, D. D., then offered prayer, after which Prof. HENRY B. ROGERS delivered the report of the Building Committee, as follows:

MR. CHAIRMAN: I have the honor and the pleasure to report to you that the foundation walls of this edifice—so loudly called for, so long delayed, with whose every stone will forever be bound up a sentiment of honor to us all—have been properly laid, and are now ready to receive their corner-stone. And, Sir, to this report I will only venture to add, in behalf of the Building Committee, the hope and the prayer in which, I doubt not, all here present will join, that upon these foundations may soon rise a building which shall be an ornament and a convenience to the University, and a fitting memorial of those never-to-be-forgotten sons of Harvard, who, in an hour of peril, heard their country's call and sacrificed their lives in its service.

The report of the Committee was then submitted by Hon. JOHN G. PALFREY, and replied to by Hon. WM. GRAY, the President of the Alumni Association.

The ceremonies of laying the corner-stone then began. First, there was music by the band, and then the entire assembly sung the following hymn, written for the occasion by Prof. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, to the tune of the Russian National Hymn:

Not with the anguish of hearts that are breaking
Come we as mourners to weep for our dead;
Grief in our hearts has grown weary with aching,
Green is the turf where our tears we have shed.

While o'er their marbles the mosses are creeping,
Stealing each name and fair record away,
Give them the love we bear to Memory's keeping,
Shrined in the temple we hallow today.

Hushed are the battle-fields, ended their marches,
Deaf are their ears to the drum-beat of morn—
Rise from the sod, ye fair columns and arches!
Tell their bright deeds to the ages unborn!

Emblem and legend may fade from the portal,
Keystone may crumble, and pillar may fall;
They were the builders whose work is immortal,
Crowned with the dome that is over us all!

Hon. E. R. HOAR, late Attorney-General of the United States then delivered an address, of which the following is an abstract:

It has seemed good to the Alumni and friends of Harvard College to erect a durable monument to the sons of Harvard who fell in the late rebellion. They have been already commemorated in the Harvard Biographies. In 1865, at the close of the war, the College welcomed her returning sons who came back from many a hard-fought field and blood-stained deck, and crowned them with her benediction. No one will ever forget that occasion. Each had his honorable distinction, while to all alike belonged a common glory that a country was saved, and that they had helped to save her. With welcome and praises for the living were mingled

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

At the Exchange yesterday, (Oct. 6,) the only transactions of the day were effected by Messrs. ROBERTS & McGUIRE, who sold several pieces of property in pursuance of decrees of the Supreme Court in judgment of foreclosure. The sales were as follows: First, the steam flouring-mill on Washington and Greenwich streets, known as the "Greenwich Mills." The premises comprise the lot with the buildings thereon and all the mill machinery. The lot has a frontage on Greenwich-street of 56 feet 5 inches, on Washington-street of 27 feet 10 inches, and runs through from street to street. The buildings are of brick, five stories in height, with a marble front. The machinery, it was stated, is in good order, and valued at $80,000. The capacity of the mill is 800 barrels per day. The same property was sold at the Exchange, Sept. 30, at an assignee's sale to close an interest, and was bid in for $157,300. The sale yesterday was for the purpose of passing the title absolutely, and was under the direction of JAS. H. COLEMAN, Esq., referee. The mortgages foreclosed amounts to about $59,000, and the total amount of the various mortgages on the entire premises to $149,000. Only one bid was made yesterday, that of $86,000, for which sum, after some delay, the property was struck off to DAVID VAIL. The price was considered very low, being far under the real value. The remaining sales were under the direction of GRATZ NATHAN, Esq., referee, and comprised one lot on the south side of Ninetieth-street, 275 feet west of Third-avenue, which was sold for $6,250, and one lot on the north side of Twenty-seventh-street, 200 feet east of Second-avenue, which was knocked down for $8,000. The dimensions of the lots will be found in the summary.

Today, some very valuable property will be offered by ROBERTS & McGUIRE, full particulars in regard to which will be found in our advertising columns. The attendance should be large, as the lots, from their location, are worthy of the attention of real estate investors.

To-morrow the large lot of villa property located at Rye, in Westchester County, will be sold by DINGEE, KETCHAM & Co., the sale taking place on the premises at 1 P. M. Seventy-four plots in all will be disposed of, equal to 416 city lots, and the improvements in progress on this property, together with those also in progress in the immediate vicinity, renders the sale one of importance to those interested in suburban transactions.

The prospects for business activity for next week are good, and Tuesday bids fair to be a very busy day, no less than six sales being already noticed for that date. These proposed transactions and any others that may be projected will be referred to at length in the TIMES of Monday.

The attendance, yesterday, at the auction sale of A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO., at Scotch Plains, N. J., was not so large as it otherwise would have been had the weather been more propitious. About 500 persons went out on the excursion train, which left at 10¾ A. M., and quite a number were on the ground upon its arrival. GRAFULA'S Seventh Regiment Band of twenty-five pieces accompanied the excursion. The sale was quite successful, however, some 200 lots being disposed of at fair prices. Full details of the transaction, with the location and price of each lot sold, will be given to-morrow.

Sales Thursday, Oct. 6, 1870.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

J. JOHNSON, Jr. Auctioneer.

BY JOHNSON & MILLER,

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 12 AT 10 O'CLOCK,

at 1 o'clock P. M. on the premises.

POSITIVE EXECUTORS' SALE OF THIRTY ACRES LAND, DIVIDED INTO SEVERAL CHOICE BUILDING SITES, AT NEW-DORP, STATEN ISLAND.—By order of Edmund Unkart, Fredk. Meisner and Geo. J. Bechtel, Jr., executors of the estate of Anna M. E. Unkart.

The property is situated one and a half miles from New-Dorp Station, Staten Island Railroad, on high ground, commanding charming views of the ocean, bay and adjacent country. It is surrounded by elegant country-seats, and is, beyond question, a most healthy and desirable place for residence. Time from New-York to New-Dorp, by steam-boat and railroad, one hour.

THE SALE WILL BE ABSOLUTE, AND WITHOUT LIMIT OR RESERVE.

TERMS—SIXTY PER CENT. ON MORTGAGE FOR FIVE OR TEN YEARS.

Also, at the same time and place,

THE ELEGANT COUNTRY-SEAT, WITH SPACIOUS MANSION AND SEVENTY ACRES LAND, FORMERLY BELONGING TO THE LATE C. A. MEISSNER. SUBDIVIDED INTO FOUR DESIRABLE SECTIONS.

This splendid property is situated in the immediate vicinity of the UNKART ESTATE, on an elevated plateau. Magnificent views of the ocean, Newark Bay and the country around for miles greet the vision on all sides of the property. The locality is perfectly healthy, the surroundings first-class.

The MANSION, OUT-BUILDINGS and nineteen acres of land, will be sold together. The house is 42x48, extension 16x28, two stories, attic and cellar; contains fifteen rooms, bath-room, &c. THE OUT-BUILDINGS CONSIST OF BARN, STABLES, CARRIAGE-HOUSES, &c. There is also a good garden, fruit, &c., the whole constituting a complete and charming country home. The stock and crops will also be sold. The balance will be disposed of in sections, varying in size from eight to twenty-four acres, susceptible of subdivision into attractive villa plots.

HOW TO GO TO THE SALE.—Take 11 o'clock boat, at the foot of Whitehall-st., to Vanderbilt Landing, thence by special train to New-Dorp. Carriages will be at the depot to convey purchasers to the grounds.

If the weather is stormy the sale will take place the next fair day.

Parties desirous of examining the property can make arrangements with the auctioneers, any day before the sale, to go to New-Dorp without charge.

For maps and free tickets, apply to JOHNSON & MILLER, No. 25 Nassau-st., New-York, and No. 157 Montague-st., Brooklyn.

E. A. LAWRENCE, Auctioneer.

ROSELLE! ELIZABETH! ELIZABETH!

ROSELLE LOTS!

To be sold to the highest bidder,

by Messrs. LAWRENCE, OAKLEY & FLEURY,

on TUESDAY, Oct. 11, 1870,

at 1 o'clock P. M. on the premises.

What are lots handsomely situated in one of the most accessible and attractive sections of New-Jersey, forty-five minutes from Wall-st., really worth?

Can they be sold?

This question we propose to settle by an actual sale, and to it we would respectfully but earnestly direct public attention. Sale made to close a partnership interest, positively on the day named, and absolutely to the highest bidder.

We shall sell a large first-class residence, (late Underhill's, now Leland's,) beautifully situated, nearly midway between Roselle and West Elizabeth Stations, fourteen miles from New-York, or forty-five minutes by the New-Jersey Central Railroad. Fourteen trains a day stop at West Elizabeth, and twenty-two at Roselle. About ten minutes' walk from either station. Commutation $65 per annum. Very healthy; fine views; good improvements; no nuisances. Schools, churches, stores and hotels in immediate vicinity.

TITLE INDISPUTABLE.

TERMS.—Twenty per cent. and auction fee on day of sale; 30 per cent. on 1st of November, at 12 o'clock, at the office of the auctioneers, when deeds will be delivered; 50 per cent. can remain (at the option of the purchaser) on bond and mortgage for two years at 7 per cent.

Maps, photographs, full particulars and tickets can be had at auctioneer's office, No. 10 Pine-st. Special train will leave foot of Liberty-st. at 12¼ on day of sale.

THE TURF.

The Jerome Park Fall Meeting.

First Day's Racing—Corsican Wins the Handicap, Kingfisher the Champion Stakes, Harry Bassett the Nursery Stakes and Oysterman the Steeple-Chase—A Magnificent Day's Racing.

The American Jockey Club commenced their Fall race meeting, yesterday, to be continued over four more days. The weather was far from auspicious, for the atmosphere throughout the day was cold and chilly, rendering overcoats a necessity for comfort, and giving convincing evidence of the rapid approach of Winter. Notwithstanding this drawback, the attendance was very large and remarkably select. The throwing open of the members' stand to the public was a graceful concession of their undoubted privileges by the Club, and will assuredly be fully appreciated by the community. The track was a safe but by no means a fast one, the rain in the beginning of the week having rendered it somewhat heavy and non-elastic.

The opening race, the handicap, was won by Corsican, who has apparently recovered his last year's form, when over this distance he was invincible. Mr. MORRIS' fully did not run up to the expectations entertained of her from her previous running this season, and Niagara, although at one time the favorite, could only gain third position; the despised Sanford, who sold lowest in the pools, beating her.

The Champion Stakes brought out six runners of the forty-six entered. Kingfisher won in the easiest possible style, and brought back $6,400 of the $15,000 that Mr. BELMONT so pluckily gave for him after winning the Belmont and Travers Stakes. Harie laid up in the first heat, and surprised a great many by beating Midday for second money. Chillicothe again showed himself a fast but uncertain horse, and Mr. MCCONNELL may congratulate herself at having got rid of the unreliable brute. In the Nursery Stakes, the favorite was cleverly beaten by Col. MCDANIELS' magnificent-looking colt. Harry Bassett, who has shown himself to be the best two-year old in training already proved a great betrayer to the Colonel and his joint owner, Mr. T. BASSETT, for he has won already close on $7,000 this season, and his purchase-money was under $400. The steeple-chase proved a failure, for two out of the three jockeys fell, and Oysterman won at his leisure.

THE HANDICAP RACE.

This was the first race on the card, and five of the horses whose colors were on the card, started. These were M. H. SANFORD'S b. f. Niagara, 4 years, 103 pounds; F. MORRIS' gr. f. Felicity, 3 years, 86 pounds; J. ECKERSON'S ch. h. Sanford, and BACON & HOLLAND'S ch. c. Mozart, 3 years, 88 pounds, and his b. g. Corsican, 5 years, 111 pounds. The pool-betting varied considerably, for on commencing business BACON & HOLLAND'S entry was the favorite until superseded by Mr. SANFORD'S Niagara, who, in turn, was deposed by the original favorite. In a good start just before the race started, BACON & HOLLAND'S entry sold for $1,000; Niagara $650, Felicity $760 and Sanford $115. The start was from the three-quarter pole, at the head of the stretch, and when the flag fell to an excellent send-off, Corsican was in the lead, with Niagara next, Sanford third, and Mozart last. As the horses passed under the string on the first quarter, Corsican was leading Sanford a clear length, Niagara third and Mozart last. There was no change in these positions as the horses went around the Club-house bluff and disappeared out of sight for a few moments. On reappearing Corsican was seen in the front two lengths before Sanford, who was nearly as far before Niagara, Felicity still holding her fourth position. The race was now virtually over, for Corsican galloped fairly away from his horses and won in such hollow style as convinced the lookers on that he has at last recovered his last year's great form, when he was looked on as almost invincible. Sanford was second, three lengths behind the winner; Niagara third, and Mozart last. Time—2:15¾.

JEROME PARK—FIRST DAY, Thursday, Oct. 6.—First race: Handicap Sweepstakes, of $50 each, play or pay, and only $10 if declared, with $500 added, the second horse to receive twenty-five per cent. of the stakes; one mile and a quarter.

THE CHAMPION STAKES.

The Champion Stakes for three-year olds, of $200 each, half forfeit, with $1,500 added, mile heats, was the next race. There were forty-six horses entered in it, but the presence of Mr. BELMONT'S great $15,000 crack, Kingfisher, deterred many intending starters from putting in an appearance. Still, there were five undismayed by the prestige of the Belmont and Travers Stakes winner, who boldly entered the lists against him. These were J. O'DONNELL'S b. c. Harie; Mr. CROUSE'S br. c. Chillicothe; CARROLL & COAR'S br. c. by Doneraile, dam Canary Bird; T. W. DOSWELL'S b. f. Midday, and M. H. SANFORD'S b. f. Item. In pools Kingfisher was a warm favorite, selling for $1,000; Harie $295, Midday $300, Chillicothe $270, field $70.

FIRST HEAT.—Chillicothe got well away on the lead, Midday second. Doneraile third, Harie next and the favorite last. As they ran around the upper turn Chillicothe was two clear lengths in front, Doneraile and Item being the next two, and Harie, with Kingfisher, the whippers-in. In this order they ran past the quarter-pole, and around the Club-house hill, and on coming again into sight the only change was in Midday's taking Item's place as third horse. Kingfisher looked so far behind that scarcely any one dreamed of his taking the heat. On the lower stretch the leading horses got closer together, and at the head of the stretch Midday, Doneraile colt and Chillicothe were all lapped, Chillicothe having, if anything, a shade the best of the others. Coming up the homestretch, Kingfisher came like an arrow from the bow from the extreme rear, caught and passed his horses as if they were all standing, and won the heat by three lengths in the hollowest style imaginable. Chillicothe was second, Midday third, Doneraile colt fourth, and Item last. Harie, who was fifth, laid up for the heat. Time—1:49.

SECOND HEAT.—Pools were now sold without Kingfisher, whose winning seemed a certainty, bar accident. Midday sold for $400; Harie $200, Chillicothe $115, and field $40. The Doneraile colt got away first when the flag fell, Harie next, Kingfisher third, and Item last. Going around the turn, Harie and Kingfisher were pulled back into the rear, leaving Doneraile to carry on the running, which he did until rounding the Club-house hill, when Midday was in the lead, Item and Harie third and fourth, and Kingfisher last. Coming in sight around the hill, Midday and Doneraile were lapped, with Harie next them, and Kingfisher fourth; Chillicothe and Item the last two. Kingfisher waited until fairly into the straight stretch before he made his effort, and the moment he did so the race was over, for although Harie made the semblance of a struggle with him for a few strides, Kingfisher shook him off with consummate ease, and won the heat and race by three lengths; Harie second, four lengths before Midday, Chillicothe fourth and Item distanced. Time—1:49.

SECOND RACE—CHAMPION STAKES.—For three-year olds, of $200 each, half forfeit, with $1,500 added; the second horse to receive $300 out of the stakes; closed 15th July, 1868, with forty-nine entries; mile heats.

THE NURSERY STAKES.

This race, for two-year olds, $50 each, play or pay, with $1,000 added, the second to receive $200 out of the stakes, had sixty subscribers, of which fifteen started, being the largest field of two-year olds that ever ran in America. The distance was one mile, and the runners were: J. O'DONNELL'S g. f. Mary Louise; H. B. TODD'S b. c. by Harry Booth; L. JEROME'S ch. f. and b. c., both by Kentucky; D. MCDANIELS' ch. c. Harry Bassett; B. W. HOXSEY'S gr. f. by Engineer; A. BELMONT'S b. f. Girl of My Heart; D. D. WITHERS' br. f. Elsie; R. E. LEWIS' ch. f. Lewis; M. A. LITTELL'S br. f. Mary Clark; HUNTER & TRAYERS' ch. by Censor, or Jerome Edgar, dam Nannie Lewis; B. G. THOMAS' b. f. Auriola, and W. R. BABCOCK'S ch. f. by Jack Malone. The betting was even on JOHN O'DONNELL'S filly, Mary Louise, against the field; Harry Bassett ranking second, and Elsie third in choice. After repeated failures, caused by the fractiousness of many of the young ones, and the anxiety of the jockeys to get off in front, (which led to HENNESSY, C. MILLER, WILSON and BURNS being fined $10 each by the starter,) a most admirable send-off was had. Harry Bassett and JEROME'S bay filly, out of Mary Biddle, were first off, with the favorite next, and the rest together, at the quarter-pole Harry Bassett was leading two lengths, with JEROME as far before the favorite, and Elsie fourth, and they ran thus around the hill—BROWN, on Mary Louise, there injudiciously making his run with the filly. Coming into sight, Harry Bassett was full two lengths ahead of the favorite, and Elsie third; Mary Louise made a desperate effort to reach Bassett, but all the leaders were running strong, and he abode content with third place by two lengths; Miss third, the rest nowhere. Time—1:49¼. The winner was purchased by Mr. B. BRUCE, in Kentucky, for Col. MCDANIELS, for $215, when a yearling, and he has already, as a two-year old, won over $6,000 in stakes in his two successful races. He is a grand-looking colt, and has a bright future before him.

THIRD RACE—NURSERY STAKES.—For two-year olds, of $20 each, play or pay, with $1,000 added; the second horse to receive $200 out of the stakes; closed 15th July, 1869, with sixty entries; one mile.

THE STEEPLE-CHASE.

This was the fourth and last race of the day. It was handicap sweep-stakes of $25 each, pay or play, with $800 added, of which $200 went to the second horse, and the third saved his stake. There were only three entries—Oysterman, ridden by WELSH, 132 pounds; Biddy Malone, ridden by GRIFFIN, 144 pounds, and Tisdale, ridden by THOMPSON, 139 pounds. The betting was $300 to $200 on Oysterman, against the field. The race proved a widely different affair to the exciting contest of last year, for Biddy Malone fell and threw her rider at the second jump, and Tisdale did the same at the fifth jump, leaving Oysterman to go over the course and win at his leisure, taking the leaps in fine style. A singular incident occurred when Biddy Malone fell, for her rider being unable to remount, HUGH GAFFNEY, the well-known hurdle-rider, ran and caught the mare, led her to the place where she fell, mounted her, and went over the course, taking all the cups in brilliant style, thus winning for her owner the $200 for second money. The rider of Tisdale also remounted and went over the course, thus saving his entrance money. Time—5:19.

FOURTH RACE—STEEPLE-CHASE HANDICAP.—Sweepstakes of $25 each, play or pay, with $800 added, of which $200 to second horse; the third horse to save his stake; about two miles and a half.

MISSIONARY WORK.

The Annual Meeting of the American Board Continued—Reports from All Quarters—The Treatment of the Indians.

Despite the threatening aspect of the weather, yesterday morning, the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, was well filled with auditors, who had assembled to observe the proceedings of the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions. Dr. HOPKINS presided.

Dr. LAURY, of the Committee on the Persian Mission, read a paper, in which he stated that the English Ritualists had been of considerable trouble in the mission, as well as in the Sandwich Islands and Madagascar.

Rev. M. MYERS, of the Madeira Mission, reported matters to be in a most hopeful condition in that country. Seventy-seven thousand eight hundred and fifty persons were addressed there during the past year, and seventy converts were made to the faith.

Rev. Dr. SWEETSER, of the Western Turkey Missions, reported that four new churches were built and 360 persons added during the year, making a total of 3,662. The contributions this year exceeded those of the last year by $2,000.

Rev. Dr. KITCHEN, of the Committee on Eastern and Central Turkey, reported that the native schools had supplied a large number of pastors and teachers. Many converts had been made.

Rev. I. S. BLISS, of the American Bible Society in Constantinople, said that twenty-three years ago there were but 350 Evangelical Protestants among the Armenians; now there were 3,000. It was a hopeful sign that a Turk could stand before the Mollahs and priests, and confess himself a Christian, and yet be allowed to walk the streets of Constantinople.

Dr. WOOD, the Secretary of the Board, read a report of the progress of the Syria Mission, showing it to be strong and prospering. The report recommended the loss to the Missionary counsel of the Board, and to the treasury thereof, caused by the withdrawal of the Syria Mission. In future the Mission would be conducted by the Presbyterians.

Rev. Dr. FISK, an assistant missionary, reported from the Ceylon Mission that a contribution of $50,000 was hoped for from this country for the college at Jaffna.

Rev. Mr. HASTINGS, of the Ceylon Mission, said figures could not express the progress made. Prejudices had been removed, a language christianized, numerous schools established, and the children no longer needed to be bribed by food and clothing to attend.

President STEARNS, of Amherst College, read an interesting report from the Committee on Home Missions, in which strong ground was taken in favor of woman's engaging in the missionary work. An earnest appeal was also made on behalf of the missionaries abroad.

Hon. WILLIAM E. DODGE, on behalf of the Committee on North American Indians, presented a well-considered report, at the conclusion of which the following resolutions were presented and adopted:

Resolved, That the success which has attended the labors of the Board among the Indians, following other Indians, amid many discouragements, gives hope and confidence in renewed efforts to save a remnant of these heathen whom God's providence has placed as our very doors.

Resolved, This Board has witnessed with deep interest the change which the Government has recently made in the management of the Indian Department, and the desire manifested by the President and the Secretary of the Interior, and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, that the several religious denominations of the country should interest themselves in securing for the different tribes, as residents, the gospel of high moral character, who will be ready to aid the Government in the policy of collecting the tribes on separate and defined reservations, and the instructing them in the habits of the civilization of the Christian, and the children in schools, and generally treating them as the wards of the Government, to be cared for, rather than enemies to be destroyed.

Resolved, That in the rapid construction of railways in all directions through the hunting grounds of the Indians, it is evident that unless something be done at once for these poor children of the forest, who are living deprived, from year to year of the game on which they have heretofore subsisted, they must perish.

Resolved, That this Board, believing in the power of the Gospel to save to the uttermost, have no sympathy with the sentiment so fully expressed by many, that the Indians are decreed to destruction, and the sooner they are annihilated, the better; but, encouraged by the present attitude of the Government, and the renewed interest felt by Christians all over the land, they will, as far as the means shall be furnished by the churches, enlarge their work among the Indian tribes, and, by the blessing of God, do what they can to save those unfortunate people from the ruin which must follow unless the Christian of our country and among us will now second the humane plan of the Government.

Mr. DODGE and several other gentlemen delivered eloquent addresses on the Indian question, in which they utterly repudiated the idea, now so commonly received, that the red man must be extirpated. They held that there was nothing either in the condition or nature of the Indian to prevent him, if the proper Christian influences were brought to bear, from becoming civilized and happy in a state of peace.

At this point a recess was taken to 7½ in the evening. In the interim, however, the communion service was administered to a large number of people in Plymouth Church. Rev. Dr. STORRS, of Brooklyn, delivered the invocation and prefatory address, after which Rev. J. MITCHEL, of Chicago, performed the office of celebrant, and at the conclusion spoke eloquently on the subject of Christian emotion. He said that the fact that the Board of Foreign Missions was $22,000 in debt, argued the existence of a state of feeling far from honorable to a country calling itself religious.

This sacrament was also celebrated in the Lafayette-avenue Presbyterian Church.

German Immigration.

The business manager of the German Immigration Society reports that during the past month 2,317 German immigrants were landed at this port, being a decrease of 4,238 as compared with the corresponding period of last year. Since the 1st of January 23,786 were landed at this port, while the German immigration at this port during the corresponding period of last year amounted to 31,704—21,918 more than this year. The German Society, during the past month, expended $853 in aid of needy German immigrants, and an equal amount was appropriated to be used in the same manner during the present month.

Conviction of the Cherry-Street Murderer for Manslaughter.

The jury in the case of PATRICK MATTHEWS, indicted on a charge of having murdered HUGH MCCALL, in Cherry-street, in August last, brought in a verdict of manslaughter in the fourth degree, at the Court of General Sessions, on Wednesday evening, after several hours' deliberation. The prisoner was remanded until Friday, for sentence, by Recorder HACKETT.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

In the case of CATHARINE PFEIFFENHAUER vs. WM. BATHY, (her son-in-law,) a motion was made, yesterday, in the Court of Common Pleas, Special Term, before Judge ROSENDALE, to vacate the order of arrest granted against the defendant. It is charged that the latter caused her arrest on a false charge of receiving stolen goods, and then, having obtained $300 from her on the pretext that it was to be used in securing her release, appropriated it to his own use. This the defendant denies, and affidavits on this side of the case were presented. The decision was reserved.

The American Institute met last evening at Cooper Union, Gen. WM. HALL presiding. It was resolved that $5,500 be expended for a course of scientific lectures to be held during the ensuing Winter. Resolutions were also adopted appointing a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the sympathy of the Institute for the family of the late GEO. R. JACKSON. During the meeting an altercation occurred between a Mr. GODWIN and Dr. RICH in relation to the appointment of a chairman, in which the expressions "impudent puppy" and "blackguard" were freely exchanged. The matter, however, went no further than a wordy debate, and the proceedings terminated without any more serious results.

Mr. ASHBURY gave a dinner, last evening at the Brevoort House, to about twenty of his friends. The table was beautifully decorated with the choicest exotics, and the banquet one of the most recherché affairs ever given at the Brevoort. Among the guests were Col. Gourley, M. P. for Sunderland, Alderman Jerome, Lord Walter Campbell, Rear-Commodore Douglas, Mr. Cunningham, Mr. Brevoort, Mr. Nathrop, George L. Schuyler, Richard Irving, Jr., Mr. Garner, Mr. George Cunard Allen, Mr. Wright, Mr. Dobell, Mr. Ch. Stebbins, Mr. Cook, Mr. Kemp. After dinner, a few speeches were made of a congratulatory character, and Mr. ASHBURY gracefully expressed his regret at leaving a City where he had been the recipient of such general kindness and civility.

The regatta of the Gulick Boat Club will be rowed on Saturday, Oct. 8. The races will consist of three, all to be rowed in seventeen-feet single scull working boats. The first race, for the championship of the Club, will be contested by R. B. DEELY, E. EAKES and W. GARNON. The second race by T. MOORE, J. KARBES, E. KENNY, W. H. SPEAR and J. BRYSON. The third race by Hon. M. NORTON, Alderman GEORGE MITCHELL, R. LINDSEY and J. KELLY. Distance, in each race, three miles. The steam-boat Fort Lee will leave the foot of Christopher-street at 2 P. M., and accompany the boats over the course.

The match with the Fleetwing has been accepted by Mr. ASHBURY, and he has named Tuesday for deciding the race. Mr. ASHBURY and his friend, Mr. POOR, leave this evening for Chicago, where they remain a couple of days, and then proceed to Omaha. After two days' rest, they will then go to Salt Lake City, and spend a week among the Mormons, and thence proceed to San Francisco. They expect to return in about six weeks.

The Relief Committee of Harper's Ferry, West Va., have appointed Dr. HENRY D. LOWLEY, of the Women's Relief Rooms, No. 67 and 69 Front-street, in this City, to solicit subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers by the recent flood. Capt. S. OSCAR RYDER, of this firm, who has just returned from Harper's Ferry, says that none who have not been there can realize the misery caused by the devastations of the flood.

WM. MARSH, the United States soldier who murdered an abandoned woman named MARY NELSON, at No. 161 Greene-street, on the 9th ult., by shooting her in the abdomen because she would not marry him, died yesterday in the Penitentiary Hospital of wounds self-inflicted at the time of the tragedy. The woman died very soon after receiving the fatal wound, and the Coroner's jury having rendered a verdict against MARSH, he was sent to the Penitentiary Hospital on Blackwell's Island for safe keeping, he having shot himself through the head. An inquest will be held today by Coroner SCHIRMER.

FRANCIS BURBRIDGE, a contractor, residing at No. 695 Third-avenue, was yesterday charged in the Yorkville Police Court, by JAMES O'BRIEN, of East Forty-fourth-street, near First-avenue, with firing a pistol at him on Friday afternoon. O'BRIEN was working for a contractor who has men working on a waste lot contiguous to one which BURBRIDGE is clearing away. A dispute arose regarding a place where both parties were throwing débris, when BURBRIDGE fired at O'BRIEN. The accused was held in $1,000 bail to answer.

It is proposed to assemble the surviving members of the old Fifth New-York Volunteers, at a reunion, some time this Winter, for the purpose of reviving old associations and reminiscences of the camp and field. Officers and members of this famous regiment are requested to forward as many of their comrades' names and addresses as possible to Mr. GEORGE F. WILLIAMS, office of the NEW-YORK TIMES, in order that the proposed movement may be inaugurated.

Yesterday the sky was overcast and the temperature was cool. At night the wind rose and sung a requiem mass for the departed Summer. A special meeting of the Lotos Club was held last evening at No. 2 Irving-place, for the purpose of taking suitable action upon the decease of their president officer, Mr. DE WITT VAN BUREN. Mr. PARDESSUS SCHELL occupied the chair, and a full representation of the Club was present. Resolutions of regret at the loss of one of the founders of the Club, and an estimable and accomplished gentleman, were adopted.

Rev. EDWARD HENRY BICKERSTETH, M. A., of London, author of Yesterday, Today and Forever, will preach in Association Hall, Twenty-third-street corner Fourth-avenue this (Friday) evening, at 8 o'clock. A very large attendance is looked for.

A fire broke out last evening on the third floor of No. 3 Hudson-street, occupied by HOWELL & BROS. as a packing-box factory; damage, $200 to the stock. The second floor is occupied by J. V. ONETCOLT, carpenter, whose loss is $100. The first floor is occupied by CHAS. DRAKE, commission merchant; damage, $300. The flames extended to No. 5, and occasioned the following losses: Third floor, LEONARD RING, painter, $500; first floor, W. W. FOWLER, liquors, $50. Both buildings were damaged to the extent of $2,000.

Fire-Marshal MCSPEDON yesterday concluded his investigation touching the explosion in the cellar of premises No. 1,118 Third-avenue, occupied by JOSEPH REICHARTS as a dining-room. The chemical experts who conversed with the explosion was the result of design, and he will cause the arrest of REICHARTS and JOHN GRAHAM, as soon as they recover from their injuries.

The Board of Health met yesterday in special session, but adjourned without transacting any business. The daily sessions are held for the purpose of meeting any emergency which may arise in connection with the yellow fever.

The loss of five $1,000 bonds of the issue of 1867, was reported yesterday by the brokers telegraph. It was stated that they were stolen by a sneak-thief, though the firm whose names were mentioned as the sufferers, refused to give any information, and even denied that they had lost any bonds.

FERDINAND B. HERSCHTING, a German, describing himself as an artist, was yesterday arraigned before Justice HOGAN, at the Tombs, to answer the charge of forgery. He called upon Mrs. ELIZABETH WESSERMEYER, at No. 362 Mott-street, and presented a note asking for $6, and purporting to have been signed by his employer, ARNOLD FRONIEN. The lady paid the money, only to find out afterward that the signature was a forgery. The magistrate held the accused for trial at the General Sessions in default of $1,000 bail.

The ladies of St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church propose to hold a fair in the Academy of Music, Fourteenth-street and Irving-place, from Monday, the 24th inst., to Saturday, the 5th of November, inclusive. No pains have been spared to make the fair attractive and successful. The celebrated band of the Seventh Regiment will give a choice concert every evening. The object of the fair is to raise funds for the new church now in process of erection on Twelfth-street, between Fourth and Third avenues, as well as for the Parochial Schools Building on East Eleventh-street, in the rear of the new church.

R. H. DE BERGUE was held to answer at the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, for leaving the Astor House after having run a bill there for $106, contrary to the hotel regulations.

At Funk's Park today the Ball, Hop and Pleasure Club will participate in an old-fashioned Down East clam-bake.

BROOKLYN.

THOMAS KENNEDY, of No. 135 Bolivar-street, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday morning for carrying on the business of retail liquor-dealer without the customary license. He gave bail in $200 to appear to answer on Tuesday next.

The Mayor and members of the Common Council, with the heads of city departments generally, proceeded on a visit to the line of the water-works yesterday morning, on the invitation of the Water Board. No action will be taken by the Common Council on the purchase of ponds in Hempstead Valley for a reservoir, they desire to make an examination first. The estimated expense exceeds $1,000,000. The Mayor, being opposed to the expenditure, accompanied the party for the purpose of satisfying himself as to the necessity of the purchase.

Health Officer COCHRAN, yesterday, received a communication from Dr. BELL, one of the Quarantine Commissioners, making inquiry regarding the action taken in preventing the landing of boats from the West Branch Hospital. Dr. COCHRAN has been in the habit of making daily trips from the Hospital to the foot of Van Brunt-street, Brooklyn, for the purpose of receiving supplies, the strict interpretation of the order would embarrass the work. Dr. COCHRAN has replied to the note, excepting the sloop from the order, but distinctly confining her visits to the point to the business named. He designates the foot of Van Brunt and Pacific streets as points where the sloop may land.

Interesting services continue to be held at Brooklyn Polytechnic Hall, under the auspices of an independent society and the ministry of Rev. HUGH SMITH CARPENTER, who is engaged to supply the pulpit until further notice. Next Sabbath a farewell missionary communion service will be held, at which Rev. AUGUSTUS BRONSHEAD, who sails for India, will preach for the last time in the country. Mr. CARPENTER will afterward administer the ordinance and preach in the evening.

DANIEL C. WINSLOW was appointed as United States Commissioner, yesterday, by Judge BENEDICT.

NEW-JERSEY.

The Board of Education of Jersey City held its monthly meeting last night. The City School Superintendent presented an interesting report. There are 24,552 children in the city of an age fit to attend school. Of these 13,940 attend the public schools, 5,998 attend private schools, while only 2,475 attend no school at all. There are thirteen public school-houses in the city, and 154 teachers. The female teachers receive an average salary of $49 79 per month, and the male principals an average salary of $161 87. The average yearly cost, per scholar, is $14 21. The total school-tax will amount to $115,882. A number of resolutions were offered, censuring the action of the Common Council, and reducing the appropriations for educational purposes.

MRS. EDITH O'GORMAN AUFFRAY lectured at the Tabernacle, in Jersey City, last night, on "Romish Infallibility, Miracles and Tradition." An audience of about 200 persons were present. In the commencement of her address, Mrs. AUFFRAY spoke of her labors since she first entered the lecture field, and of the gratifying effects that had followed what she believed to be her righteous work. She then gave a catalogue of Romish traditions, with some humorous comments, and closed with a sharp criticism of the doctrine of infallibility. No disturbance was made.

BENJAMIN DUTTON, of Newburyport, Mass., and one of the largest owners of riparian lands in New Jersey, is about to present his claim to them against the State. A number of prominent Boston, New-York and New-Jersey lawyers have been employed. It is understood that in this suit, which is to be made a test case, several of the largest corporations interested in these lands will give their assistance; and Mr. DUTTON, a large number of money has been subscribed for the purpose of prosecuting the claims.

The Conductors' Life Insurance Convention, which has been for some days in session at Philadelphia, will, by invitation, pass over the New-Jersey and Camden and Amboy Railroads, on Saturday, and pay a visit to New-York. The Convention is a large one, representing almost every section of the United States and Canadas. About 300 members are expected to take part in the excursion.

The Grand Jury of Warren County have failed to find an indictment against Miss COOK, the farmer's daughter of Stewartville, who was reported to have strangled her infant last Spring. This result of the case gives general satisfaction throughout the county, where sympathy for the unfortunate girl was universal.

One of the freight cars of a train that was passing over the tracks of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, jumped the track at the east end of the tunnel, yesterday. Several cars of the same train followed, and the blockade of the track was for a time complete. The Erie trains with those of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad were detained about four hours. No lives were lost, and the damage was slight.

Yesterday the Amateurs, of Newark, and the Resolutes, of Elizabeth, played their return game of base-ball for the championship of the State, at the Waverly Fair Grounds, yesterday afternoon. The first game was won by the Resolutes, but the Amateurs, though short three of their nine, won by a score of 21 to 11.

Several changes have been made in the teachers of the Newark public schools. The report of the Treasurer of the Board of Education shows a balance of $33,217.
